

THE BLACK BOX
SEE IT. HEAR IT
AT GILMAN'S
Radio Dept. Gloucester Arcade

No. 36275

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1955.

Established 1845

MAIL

RELAX IN DAKS
THE DAKS COMPANY
IN ACTION TRAVELERS
Whiteaways
HONG KONG & KOWLOON

COMMENT OF
THE DAY

SULTAN RESTORED

THE French cabinet has decided to restore Sidi Mohammed Ben Yousef to the throne of Morocco from which he was deposed in August 1953 because of his pro-nationalist leanings. In the last few weeks this announcement had been expected sometime before the general election later this year. Coming as it does at the outset of the campaign, it is certain to be a lively issue and one which may have an important bearing on the alignment of parties in the next Assembly, and therefore the composition of the next coalition government. Having decided that there shall be no change in the proportional representation system of election, the Assembly has, in effect, opted for a fresh instalment of political impotence. Instability will reappear sooner or later and the familiar pattern of crisis and compromise which has dominated French politics in recent years is the prospect again in the future.

IT is important to stress this for it is the backdrop before which events in Morocco will be shaped in the months ahead. At the outset it is necessary to correct any belief that the Moroccan drama has ended with the restoration of Ben Yousef, that this third act will witness the quiet, orderly development of Moroccan government towards home rule—as promised by M. Faure—and the growth of more friendly feelings between Rabat and Paris.

For not only is there no certainty that M. Faure will be the next Premier of France—and therefore no certainty that the next government will choose the same remedies to treat the effects of chronic nationalism—but there is also no certainty that the restoration of Ben Yousef is the ideal panacea for this particular problem.

For example, the Presence Française—representative of staunch conservative French settlers—will almost certainly dispute the decision on the grounds that it amounts to appeasement of nationalists agitation. Their livelihood, they fear, may become untenable in a Morocco where home rule makes no adequate provision for interests of minorities. Again, several groups of nationalists retain bitter memories of wayward and arbitrary behaviour by Ben Yousef before 1953 and will accept him back only if he has renounced the curb of constitutional monarchy.

THE shaping of Morocco's future will be the responsibility of the new Government of France. One would feel more hopeful if there was a good chance that a Mendes-France or a Faure (despite his tragic hesitancy in the past) would take the helm of government next year. But it is much less than a good chance, and the manoeuvrings of the Communists and Socialists give rise to some misgivings.

It is difficult to say how much prestige M. Faure has earned for his achievements. He will undoubtedly tell the electorate that an ordered settlement in Morocco will result in a gradual withdrawal of some 60,000 French troops stationed there. This will appear some of his critics but at the same time it is certain to provoke strong criticism from the French colonials and their powerful lobby in Paris.

There will also be criticism that the move has been badly timed and that it was a reckless gamble to restore the former sultan at all. But M. Faure is pledged to the gradual development of Morocco towards home rule. And this ideal is attainable if he or his successor acts with care, patience and consistency.

US MIDDLE EAST POLICY

AID FOR ANY INVADED COUNTRY

SUPPORT FOR UN PROPOSALS

Washington, Nov. 6.

The United States would do everything it possibly could to help any Middle Eastern country—Arab or Israel—that might be invaded, the Assistant Secretary of State, Mr George V. Allen, said in a television interview today.

The United States government, Mr Allen said, "is going to be very angry at any country which starts a preventive war or an aggressive war." Likewise, he added, the United States "is going to be very 'pro' any country that demonstrates it wants to keep the peace."

Mr Allen, the State Department's senior Middle East specialist, said he thought Israel and Egypt might very well accept United Nations peace proposals to relieve tension in the turbulent area.

Mr Allen described the recommendations such as they had been unofficially reported as providing:

1. The United Nations should be allowed "to continue its work" of clearly defining with physical markings the demilitarised El Auja Nizana zone, around which Egyptians and Israelis have battled furiously in recent days.

2. Neither side should mainly keep its tanks in the zone. United Nations observers should have "entire freedom" to determine if anyone crosses the boundaries.

Yesterday Mr Allen told the Israeli and Egyptian ambassadors to Washington that the United States supports "the United Nations plan."

Each ambassador gave apparently "sincere" assurances, Mr Allen said, that neither Israel nor Egypt had any intention of setting off an "aggressive" war.

3-Nation Agreement

Mr Allen did not say just what the United States would do in case of a full-scale attack. But he said it would operate under a three-nation agreement adopted with Great Britain and France after the Palestine war. This was designed to prevent a Middle East arms race and block any "forceful change" of Arab-Israel frontiers.

Present Soviet policies, Mr Allen said in answer to a question, did not seem to fit in with the purposes of this agreement.

Mr Allen said the United States viewed "with grave concern" Egypt's deal to barter cotton for arms with Czechoslovakia, and he gave this account of previously disputed United States conversations with Egypt on possible weapons transactions.—Reuter.

Escaped Convict Surrenders

Seattle, Nov. 6.

One of 10 convicts who escaped from the Washington State Penitentiary on Thursday surrendered today because he said, "I forgot my heart pills and couldn't run very fast."

He said that after the break the convicts had trudged nearly 25 miles. He added: "I forgot my heart pills and couldn't run very fast." The inmates bored through a seven-inch concrete floor and then tunneled 60 feet to a point outside the prison. Prison officials described the escape as a "masterpiece of engineering"—United Press.

ISRAEL TAKES "A MOST SERIOUS VIEW"

Jerusalem, Nov. 6.

The Israeli government today warned Jordan that she takes a "most serious view" of last night's attack on the border settlement of Sdeh Hamad.

The warning was conveyed to Colonel R. H. Bennett, acting chief of the United Nations troops supervising armistice, and later to a Jordan delegation attending the emergency meeting of the Foreign

That Snap Election May Not Come Off

Paris, Nov. 7.

The Government's plans for holding snap elections in December have received a setback and may postpone the whole scheme for several months and even bring down the Cabinet.

The blow was delivered by the Radicals under the leadership of M. Pierre Mendes-France.

The Congress showed itself violently hostile to the Premier, M. Edgar Faure.

The objections of the congress to holding elections under the existing voting system were so strong that the Council of the Republic, the upper house of Parliament, will now certainly become the scene of a determined effort to hold up elections this year and to make another attempt after the single-member constituency system had been restored first.

M. Mendes-France told the congress that the existing system of proportional representation coupled with inter-party alliances could only bring back the same kind of incoherent and ungovernable assembly that the prewar system of single member constituencies chosen in successive ballots could give the country a coherent majority needed to make stable and progressive government possible.

LEGAL MARRIAGE

His former wife married an American serviceman, John Supinski, in 1952 while he was stationed in Germany. Supinski said their marriage was legal.

"We did just what the German Court told us to do," he said.

The Court cautioned Mrs Supinski at the time she obtained the certificate that should her first husband ever prove to be alive she would have to choose between the two.

For Mrs Supinski there is no decision to make. She said: "Johnny is my husband. I want to stay with him and my children."—United Press.

"DEAD" HUSBAND RETURNS

New York, Nov. 6.

A German war bride said today she would stay with her American husband, even though her first husband had returned after being legally "dead" for five years.

Mrs Lore Supinski, now living in Canonsburg, Pennsylvania, cites a death certificate from a court in Nuremberg, Germany, to prove that her first husband, former German Storm Trooper Walter Choroba, is dead.

But Choroba was repatriated by the Russians last month after serving ten years as a war prisoner in the Soviet Union. Dispatches from Germany have quoted him as saying he will fight the death certificate which was issued in 1950.

LEGAL MARRIAGE

His former wife married an American serviceman, John Supinski, in 1952 while he was stationed in Germany. Supinski said their marriage was legal.

"We did just what the German Court told us to do," he said.

The Court cautioned Mrs Supinski at the time she obtained the certificate that should her first husband ever prove to be alive she would have to choose between the two.

For Mrs Supinski there is no decision to make. She said: "Johnny is my husband. I want to stay with him and my children."—United Press.

SUNNY SUNDAY

Paris, Nov. 6.

Paris boulevards were crowded with costless strollers as a spell of warm and sunny weather spread throughout most of France today.

Open-air cafes did a good trade with temperature rising to 65 degrees Fahrenheit.—China Mail Special.

JORDAN TAKES "A MOST SERIOUS VIEW"

Jerusalem, Nov. 6.

Jordanian forces from Jordan had tried to blow up three houses at Sdeh Hamad. No casualties were caused among settlers and damage was slight, he said.

The warning was conveyed to Colonel R. H. Bennett, acting chief of the United Nations troops supervising armistice, and later to a Jordan delegation attending the emergency meeting of the Foreign

Winner Of The Macao Grand Prix Receives His Trophy

Right To Independence Recognised

TITO AND DULLES IN AGREEMENT

Brioni, Yugoslavia, Nov. 6.

Mr John Foster Dulles, American Secretary of State, and Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia agreed at talks here today that the Communist countries of East Europe are entitled to their independence.

Mr Dulles told a press conference after their talks: "We were of common accord in recognising the importance of the independence of those states in non-interference from outside in their internal affairs and their right to develop their social and economic order in the way of their own choice."

Marshal Tito, who attended the press conference, was asked if he and Mr Dulles agreed on a common policy towards the Eastern European states. "Yes, that is correct," he replied.

The two statesmen talked for two and a half hours under a warm Mediterranean sun on a rocky uninhabited islet of the Brioni group in the Adriatic, where Marshal Tito has his summer residence.

Speaking on a terrace in front of a disused fisherman's hut, they and their closest advisers discussed Eastern European progress at the Geneva conference of foreign ministers, European security, German unity and the Middle East situation.

LOOKED HEALTHY

Returning to nearby Brioni from Vanga islet, they sat down to the press conference. President Tito looked in good health after a month on Brioni recovering from a rheumatic illness. Mr Dulles said he had a "most agreeable day."

He said he had reported to President Tito on the Geneva conference and heard the Yugoslav leader's views on the problems of European security and Germany.

"The meeting proved again the usefulness of such personal contacts for the mutual acquaintance of views and for improvement of peace and international co-operation in the spirit of the United Nations."—United Press.

Ford Family To Give Up Control

New York, Nov. 6.

The heirs of Henry Ford have agreed to relinquish control of the 52-year-old Ford Motor Company to permit stock to be offered to the public, the Ford Foundation announced today.

Mr Henry Ford, grandson of the founder and members of the Ford family, will transfer 60 percent of their voting rights to new common stock.

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met the President of Yugoslavia, Josip Broz Tito, in Belgrade, tonight said that agreement had been reached on a number of questions."

The communiqué said: "On November 6, 1955, the United States Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, met

KING'S PRINCESS: EMPIRE

AT 2.30, 5.10,
7.20 & 9.30 || AT 2.30, 5.15,
7.30 & 9.45 P.M. || AT 2.30, 5.10,
7.20 & 9.30 P.M.

(Please note special showing times)

TO-DAY

A picture for those who have seen the Air Display.
A 'MUST' for those who missed itLobby display of aircraft models at Princess and Empire by courtesy of Radar Co.
at King's by Hobby Center

AT KING'S — Full effects of PERSPECTA SOUND

Complimentary tickets are not valid

NEW YORK-GREAT WORLD

CAUSEWAY BAY TEL 78771 KOWLOON TEL 53500

• SHOWDOWN TO-DAY
AT 2.30, 5.30, 7.30 & 9.30 P.M.NEW LAUGHTER IN STORE WITH NORMAN WISDOM
in

"MAN OF THE MOMENT"

Also Starring

Lana Morris Belinda Lee

Of course it's

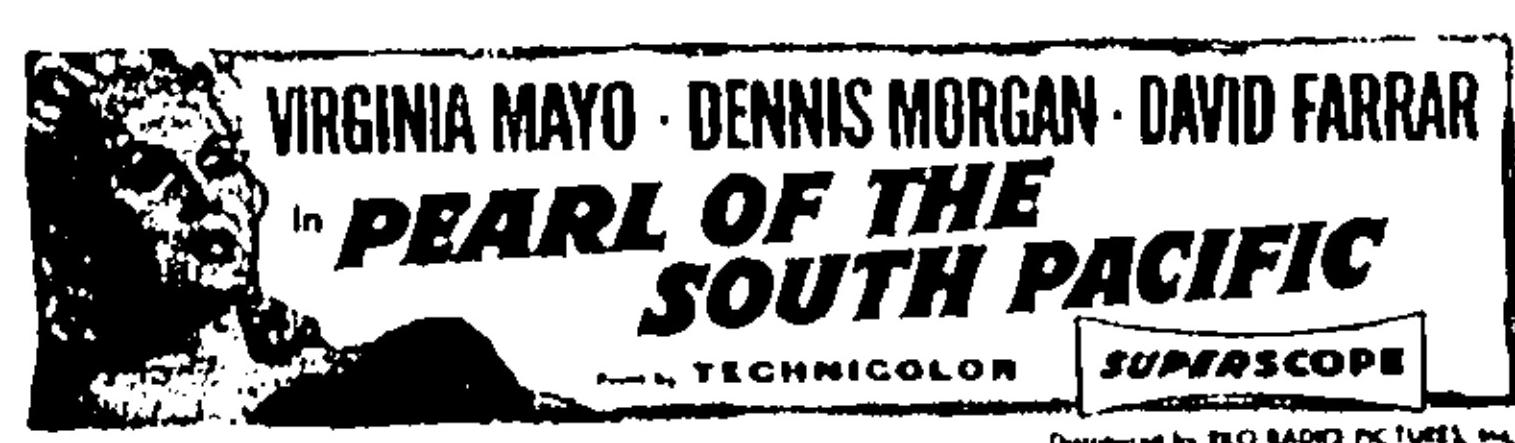

A. J. Arthur Rank Picture

SPECIAL ATTRACTION

"FESTIVAL TIME"

The Venice International FILM FESTIVAL of 1955

— NEXT CHANGE —

ROXY &amp; BROADWAY

SHOWING TO-DAY
AT 2.30, 5.30, 7.30 & 9.30 P.M.

HAN SUYIN'S IMMORTAL LOVE STORY

20th Century-Fox presents

WILLIAM HOLDEN JENNIFER JONES

ORIENTAL AIR CONDITIONED
FINAL TO-DAY
AT 2.30, 5.30, 7.30 & 9.30 P.M.LEE TO-NIGHT
AT 8.00 P.M.CHINESE OPERA
(In Mandarin)
Admission: HK$1.10, HK$1.40, HK$1.50

Big London Wedding

Miss Emily Licos, 24-year-old daughter of a Greek film distributor and racehorse owner, leaving St Stephen's Church, Watbrook, in the City of London, with her husband, Mr James Tennant, second son of Lord Glenconner, after their wedding last week.—Central Press Photo.

Eden, Macmillan &amp; Morrison To Speak

Missing Diplomats Case To Be Debated In Commons

London, Nov. 7. Sir Anthony Eden, the Prime Minister, and Mr Harold Macmillan, Foreign Secretary, will be the principal Government speakers when the House of Commons discusses the case of the two missing British diplomats, Guy Burgess and Maclean today.

HOPES OF PROGRESS
AT GENEVA

Geneva, Nov. 6. Mr Charles Wilson, United States Defence Secretary, left here by air for Washington tonight after attending the initial phase of the "Big Four" conference.

"We sincerely hope that the frank discussion of the problems by the four foreign ministers will finally result in some real progress," he said before leaving.

His place in the American delegation has been taken by Mr Gordon Gray, assistant Defence Secretary for International security affairs, who flew here from Washington earlier today.—Reuter

SHOOT LESS GAME PLEA

Salisbury, Nov. 6. To ensure that the big game population of Southern Rhodesia is maintained, the government has decided that in future hunters will have to be content with licensed to shoot restricted numbers and only certain species.

The Southern Rhodesian Game Officer said there is still a fairly large game population in the colony, but in view of the number of animals which have been shot in anti-sabotage operations, game has been declining for some years.—China Mail Special.

SKIPPING CAN BE DANGEROUS

Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, Nov. 6. Peggy Haseldine, 6, has given up skipping for a while. She nearly choked to death while swallowing a pencil while skipping.

She was rushed to hospital where the pencil was removed. A doctor said: "We got it out only just in time."—China Mail Special.

Bloemfontein, Nov. 6. After spending two days in the family refrigerator, in Bloemfontein, a pet cat was found frozen stiff.

But several hours later, after it had been placed in front of a warm stove, it began to thaw out and was soon leaping up milk, none the worse for its experience.—China Mail Special.

DOCTORS GIVE HIM A THOROUGH CHECKUP
IKE FIT TO LEAVE HOSPITAL?

Denver, Nov. 6. President Eisenhower had a medical examination at Fitzsimons Army Hospital this afternoon to determine when he could leave hospital.

Dr Paul Dudley White, Boston heart specialist, arrived early in the afternoon and joined Mr Eisenhower's staff of physicians at Fitzsimons for what the White House described as a "rather lengthy" medical examination.

If they are satisfied with his condition they will submit a suggested programme for this week and "the President will then make the decision," said the Presidential press secretary, Mr James Hagerty.

HIS BEST GUESS

Mr Hagerty said pending a report from the doctors his "best guess" was that Mr Eisenhower would leave next Friday for Washington, perhaps spend the weekend at the White House, then leave for Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, on Monday November 14.

The morning medical bulletin continued to report progress in his recovery from a heart attack which he suffered on September 24.

The President this morning, following a routine "designed primarily on mobility as an antidote to the weaknesses produced by long bedrest," received new confidential reports on fighting in the Middle East. The White House declined to elaborate.—United Press.

The U.S. has repeatedly stated that it supports the Philippines.

COMPROMISE PLAN TO END DEADLOCK
IN U.N.

United Nations, Nov. 6. A compromise in the voting deadlock between the Philippines and Yugoslavia for a seat in the Security Council was under "informal discussion" by Western powers this weekend, an informed source said today.

Neither the Philippines nor Yugoslavia has received an outright majority in 12 ballots conducted by the General Assembly so far.

The ballots have divided the United States and Britain. Britain is backing Yugoslavia on the grounds that it is an eastern European nation and entitled to a Security Council seat for the next two years under the "gentlemen's agreement of 1946" among the major powers.

The U.S. has repeatedly stated that it supports the Philippines.

Belgian Plan

Russia backed Yugoslavia shortly after the voting began on October 14. The first Soviet candidate was Poland, but it received poor support in the Assembly, and after a few ballots, Russia withdrew its support.

A compromise plan was reported to have been proposed by Belgium, which, with the other Benelux nations, the Scandinavian bloc and some of the Commonwealth nations, is backing Britain in supporting Yugoslavia as an east European candidate.

Belgian delegates say the plan is in "circulation" but don't know that they introduced it.

Under the plan, the Philippines would be elected for a two-year term beginning January 1 to succeed Turkey. When elections are held two years hence an east European nation—but not necessarily a Communist nation—would be assured of majority support, sources said.

They told Radio Free Europe, a private American anti-Communist radio station, that the Hungarians were concentrating their effort for the games on swimming, football, shooting and the track events.

Coaches in Hungary were anxious to let their star athletes meet as many first-rate Western athletes as possible.

Training schedules for Hungarian Olympic probables had been increased to between four hours and six hours daily and athletes were subjected to the strictest discipline imaginable, the refugees said.

The coaches were also developing a large group of second-string athletes, some of whom may be good enough by the time of the Olympics to replace the big "stars," the refugee said.

Leaders on both sides hope the debate will be on non-party lines.

It will be based on a motion which does not call for a vote—the technical expedient of proposing the adjournment of the house. If this is not challenged, members will proceed with their discussion until they reach Parliament's normal evening time limit.

Mr Macmillan is due to open the debate and the Prime Minister will probably wind it up. Mr Herbert Morrison, who was Foreign Secretary in the last Labour Government when the diplomats vanished, will be the principal Opposition speaker.—China Mail Special.

Mr H. S. Jooste, Secretary of the Council, told the annual congress of the Medical Association in Pretoria: "People are working and living under the most trying conditions without appreciating the latent danger and in many cases the actual damage being done to their cars."

Pedro Armandez, "REBELLION OF THE HANGED,"

When in Macau stay at the

POUSADA INN,

Praia Grande,

Cable: Pousada.

Less Noise
Plea By Deaf Council

Pretoria, Nov. 6. A national conference on noise has been called by the South African National Council for the Deaf. It will be held early next year.

Mr H. S. Jooste, Secretary of the Council, told the annual congress of the Medical Association in Pretoria: "People are working and living under the most trying conditions without appreciating the latent danger and in many cases the actual damage being done to their cars."

Children running about with continuous and recurring discharging ears were never taken to a doctor, he said.—China Mail Special.

Work has begun to strengthen the areas.—China Mail Special.

WEAK SPOTS
IN DYKES

The Hague, Nov. 6. Experts have found 61 weak spots in the sea dykes of Zeeland Province in the Netherlands.

Schouwen-Duiveland Island, which was one of the worst stricken areas in the floods of 1953, has 15 of the weak spots, it was reported.

Work has begun to strengthen the areas.—China Mail Special.

When in Macau stay at the

POUSADA INN,

Praia Grande,

Cable: Pousada.

ADDED ATTRACTION
Official Heavyweight Championship Contest!
ROCKY MARCIANO vs
ARCHIE MOORE— NEXT CHANGE —
"RACE at DAWN"WATER IS PRECIOUS
USE IT WISELY

QUEEN'S &amp; ALHAMBRA

At 2.30, 5.30, 7.30 &amp; 9.30 p.m.

At 3.00, 6.00, 8.00 &amp; 10.00 p.m.

SHOWING TO-DAY

HOOVER : LIBERTY

CAUSEWAY BAY TEL 72371 KOWLOON TEL 50339

NOW PLAYING

2.30, 5.30, 7.30 &amp; 9.30 P.M.

CAPITOL RITZ

TO-DAY
At 2.30, 5.30, 7.30 & 9.30 p.m.

When he came to her room at night, who is he? Is he nice or is he...?

TO-DAY MORNING SHOW
AT 12.00 NOON

Burt Lancaster in "FROM HERE TO ETERNITY" A Columbia Picture

TO-DAY SPECIAL SHOW
AT 12.30 p.m.

"GUN FURY"

A HEATMASTER Production starring

ERNEST BORGnine and BETSY BLAIR

Directed by ROBERT LEONARD

Music by PHILIP GREENBERG

Columbia Pictures

Oriente Comercial

Importers, Exporters and General Merchants

22/23, Avenida Almeida Ribeiro, MACAU

Telephone: 3487.

Authorized Distributors of—

South China Morning Post

South China Sunday Post-Herald

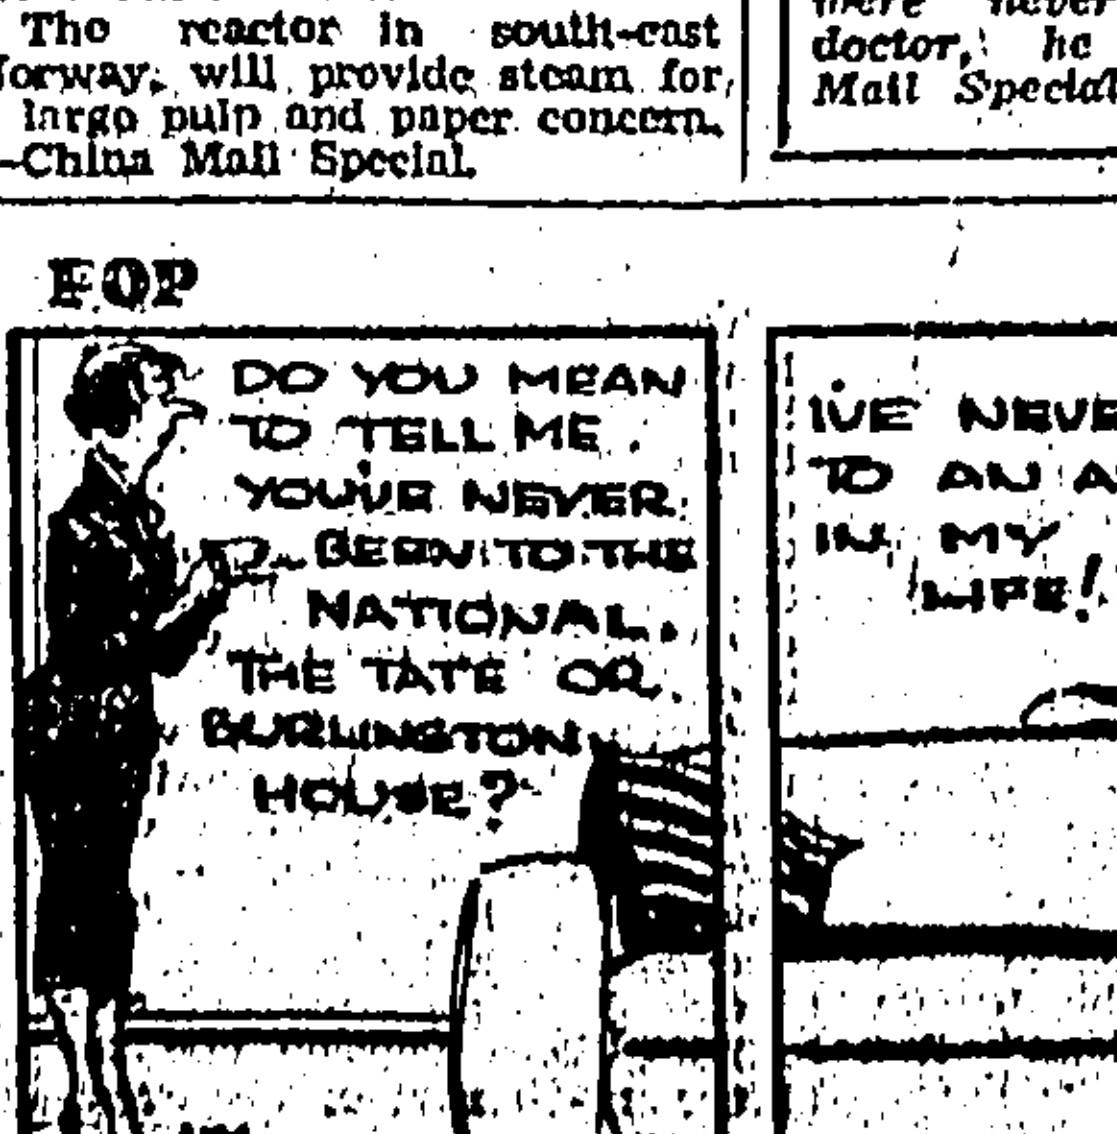

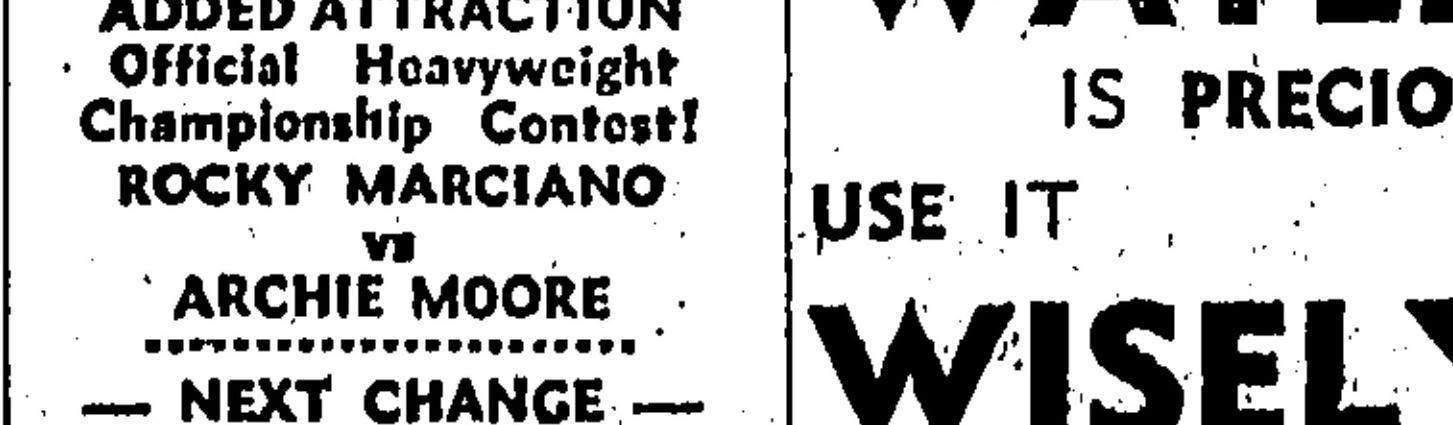

China Mail

When in Macau stay at the

POUSADA INN,

Praia Grande,

Cable: Pousada.

Truce Chief Has New Secret Plan For Palestine

ISOLATED CLASHES REPORTED AT ISRAEL VILLAGES

Jerusalem, Nov. 6.

Major-General Burns, the United Nations truce chief, today considered the threatening Arab-Israeli situation with his advisers immediately on his return to Jerusalem.

Gen. Burns, who has visited New York and London over the past two weeks, saw United Nations observers stationed in Jordan-held Gaza strip and the El Auja demilitarised zone centres of fighting between both sides.

They gave him a first-hand account of last week's battle between Israeli and Egyptian troops at El Sabra, the most bitter flare-up since the Arab-Israeli armistice of 1949.

Gen. Burns has a new plan for maintaining the ceasefire along the border. No details have been disclosed, but it will presumably supplement his proposal for a mile-wide buffer zone between the opposing sides.

Incorrect

The Israeli chief delegate at headquarters said the new plan was connected with a buffer zone. A United Nations spokesman said this interpretation was incorrect.

Train Driver Forgot

Bamberg, Nov. 6.

Railway officials stopped and recalled a train at Bamberg when it rolled past gestulating travellers at Zippendorf station because the driver forgot he was to stop there.

The train went back to Zippendorf, took aboard the indignant passengers, and brought them to Bamberg about half an hour late.

The driver explained that he had forgotten an alteration to timetables which put a Zippendorf stop on to his schedule.—China Mail Special.

FREAK SHARK

Capetown, Nov. 6.

South African fishermen trawling from Capetown found in their nets a fish later identified as "a freak shark of the man-eating variety."

The creature had the body of a shark but a grotesque, almost round, head.—China Mail Special.

Ships Ferry Supplies From Suez To Cyprus

Nicosia, Nov. 6. The 4,285-ton British ship Snowden Smith arrived at Famagusta today from the Canal Zone carrying vehicles and supplies for troops in Cyprus.

Also aboard were elements of the Rear Headquarters of the Middle Eastern Land Forces, which will be functioning later this month from Episcopi, ten miles west of Limassol, where the British Joint Air and Land Middle East Headquarters will be established.

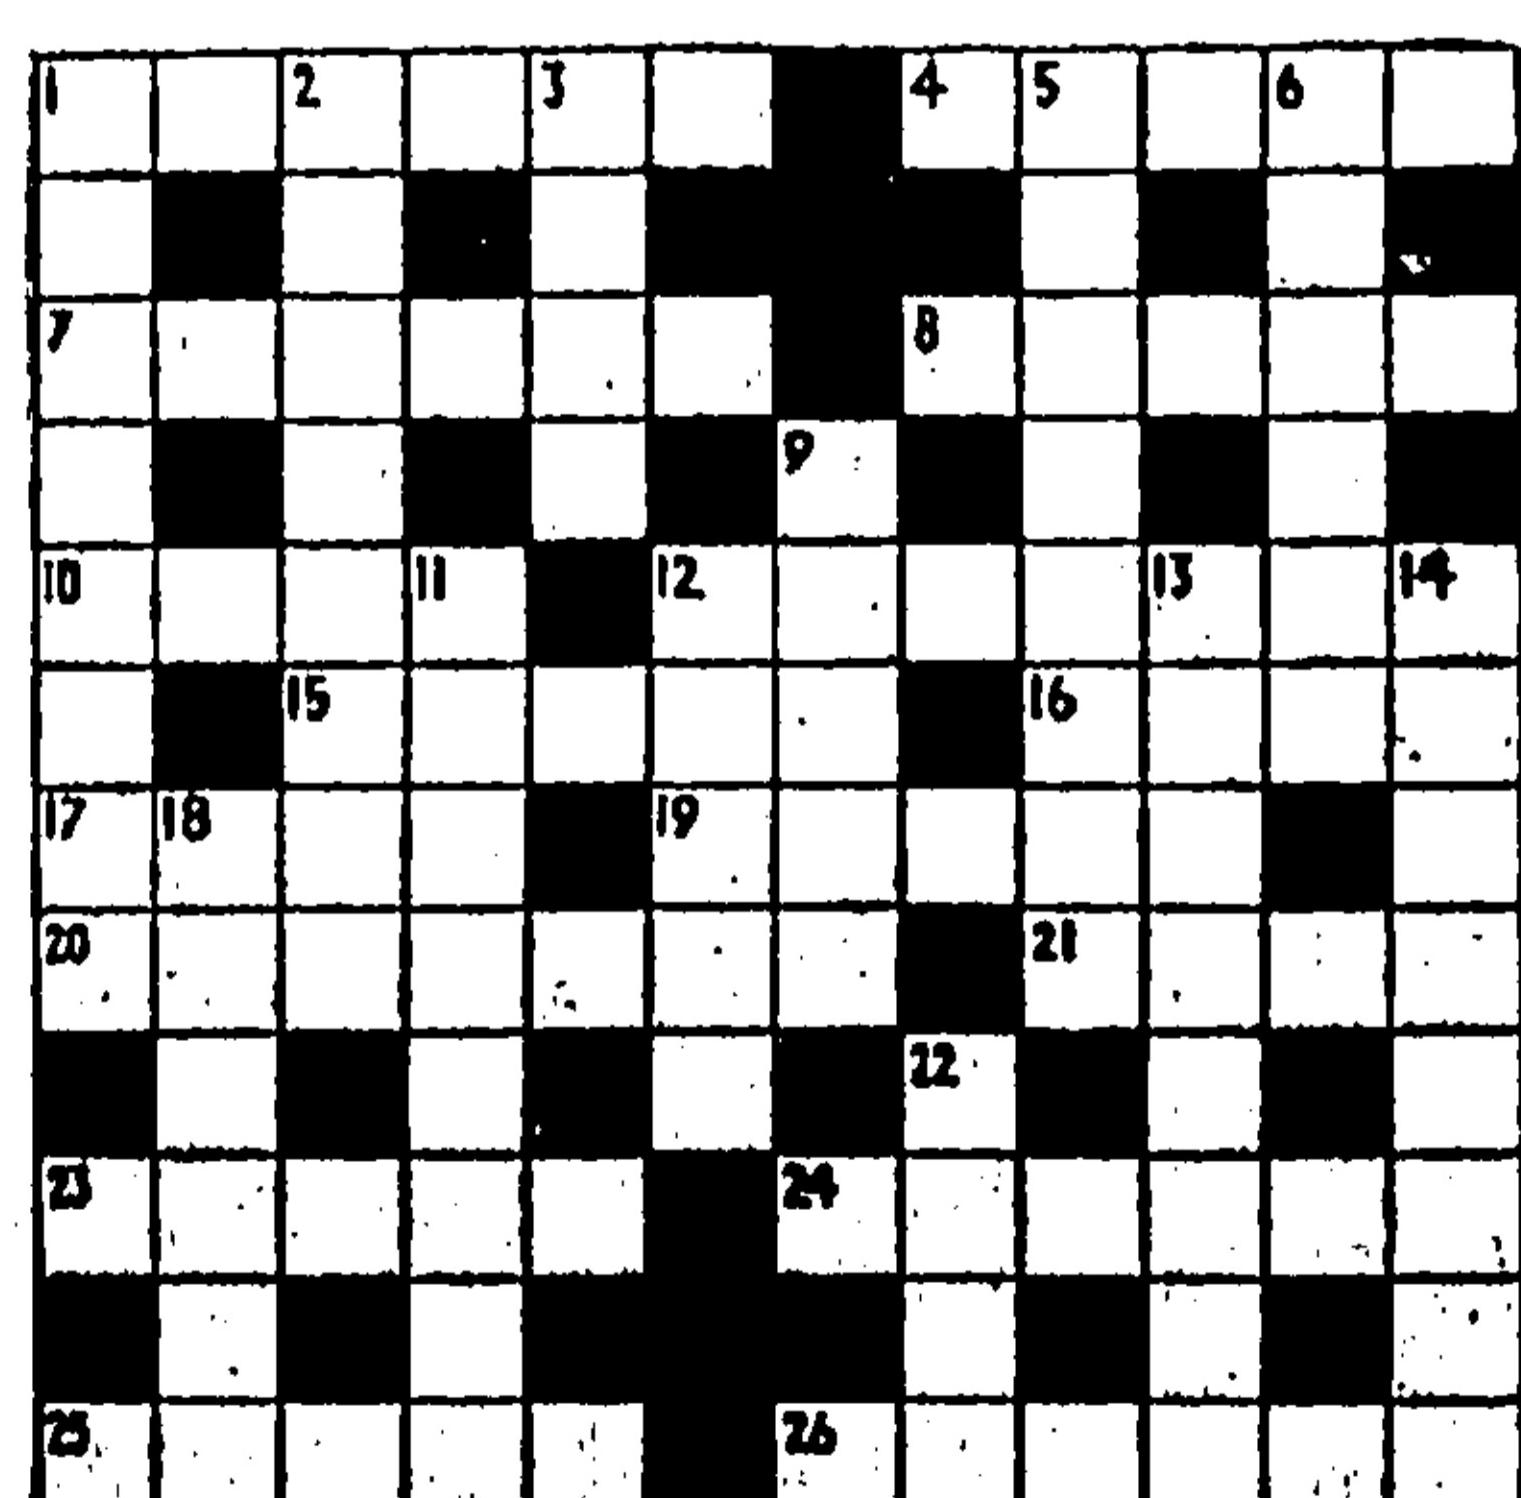

Two other British ships, the 4,202-ton Evan Gibb and the 4,255-ton Humphrey Gale, are now working with the Snowden shuttling between the Canal Zone and Famagusta to complete the transfer of supplies and troops by the middle of November.

Three more minesweepers have joined the flotilla patrolling the Cyprus coasts to prevent arms being smuggled to the island during the longer winter nights.—Reuter.

Double Colour TV Programme

New York, Nov. 6. The National Broadcasting Company today announced a $12 million (about £4,259,000) plan to double its colour television programmes in New York, Los Angeles and Chicago by next year.—China Mail Special.

A British Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS

- 1 Register (6).
- 4 Attempt (5).
- 5 Place of worship (6).
- 8 Lawn (6).
- 10 Plunder (4).
- 12 Negotiated (7).
- 15 Allotted portion (6).
- 16 Luke (4).
- 17 Prophet (4).
- 18 Shaking tree (6).
- 20 Extends (7).
- 21 Repose (4).
- 23 Sharp (8).
- 24 Lower in dignity (6).
- 25 Employing (8).
- 26 Highly pleased (6).

DOWN

- 1 Without pity (6).
- 2 Writer of music (8).
- 3 Part (4).
- 5 Penion (8).
- 6 Reply (6).
- 9 Lock of hair (5).
- 11 Menace (8).
- 12 Commerce (8).
- 13 Apartment house (8).
- 14 Feted (8).
- 18 Important periods (6).
- 22 Relate (4).

SATURDAY'S CROSSWORD—Across: 3 Painter, 8 Ensure, 9 Enduring, 11 Register, 12 Visa, 13 Oboe, 15 Erred, 16 Item, 22 Selected, 24 Hinderer, 25 Severe, 26 Peering, Down: 1 Memory, 2 Usage, 3 Precede, 4 Lent, 5 Avur, 6 Eelie, 7 Signal, 10 Desult, 14 Order, 15 Resides, 16 Blush, 17 Seance, 20 Stew, 21 Adhesive, 22 Seal, 23 Lease.

US CORPS ORDERED TO WIDEN

THE QUEEN AND LOLLO

The Queen chats with glamorous Gina Lollobrigida as she meets the stars at the Odeon Theatre, Leicester Square, London. Her Majesty and the Duke of Edinburgh were attending the Royal Film Show. On Gina's left is Virginia McKenna.—Reuterphoto.

Chemical Warfare Research

Washington, Nov. 6. THE United States Army Chemical Corps today was ordered to widen research into germ and gas warfare.

New biological, radiological and chemical weapons and methods to combat them should be developed "to the fullest extent the human mind can encompass," the Secretary of the Army, Mr Charles Brucker, said today in a call for reorganisation.

The reorganisation will be based on a report prepared by a special committee of scientists, chemical experts and educationists.

Their report said the Chemical Corps should concentrate its research on the development of weapons of "maximum potential irrespective of particular concepts of warfare," the objective being to subdue an enemy without destroying property which the victor might want to save.

The committee criticised what it called "a lack of public understanding" in this matter adding that atomic warfare was "freely discussed" but much work of the Chemical Corps had been assumed to be "horrifying" in character.

The group urged franker recognition of the "proper places of chemicals and biological warfare" and of the importance of defensive measures.

The army had said in a circular issued last summer that these "special purpose" weapons should no longer be listed in the "mass destruction" category with nuclear weapons.—Reuter.

MAN GOES BERSERK

Compton, Calif., Nov. 6. Police said a man went berserk with a 25-calibre automatic pistol today, killing his estranged wife and another woman and critically wounding a third woman.

Officers said Mrs Alice Decker, 32, and Helen Witt, 23, were killed in a spray of bullets in Mrs Decker's home. Mrs Jean Witt, 40, mother of one of the dead women, was taken to a hospital in critical condition.

Booked on suspicion of murder was Mrs Decker's estranged husband, Ray Decker. Officers said Decker had argued with his estranged wife over their marital problems.—United Press.

Czech Paper For Selassie

Prague, Nov. 6. A State-owned factory at Rozumberk, Slovakia, is to supply Emperor Haile Selassie of Abyssinia with personal newspaper in special boxes with pictures of himself and the Crown Prince, the People's Party newspaper, Lidova Demokracie reported.

Another factory near Liberec, north Bohemia, has sent chandeliers of cut crystal, each carrying 141 bulbs and weighing 160 kilograms (more than three hundredweights) to the Emperor's palace at Addis Ababa, press reports said.—China Mail Special.

WEED SPOTTER

Melbourne, Nov. 6. Country Party Member, Mr G. T. Stephens, told the Victorian Legislative Assembly that a severely noxious weed banned by Act of Parliament and bringing fines to landowners was flourishing on land given to Parliament House in Melbourne.

The Federal Minister of Agriculture, Mr John Foster Dulce, arrived here at 2210 hours (local time), from Potsdam, Germany.

Mr Dulce had been earlier today with the Yugoslav President, Marshal Josip Broz Tito, in Geneva.

Japan Planning More Diplomatic Missions Abroad

Tokyo, Nov. 6. Japan's Foreign Ministry is considering setting up diplomatic missions in Communist countries such as Russia, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Rumania, the Japanese news agency, Kyodo, said today.

The ministry, however, the current Japanese-Soviet peace talks in London would be successfully concluded before the end of the year.

Gen. Twining, in Korea for a quick two-day look at advance elements of the Fifth Air Force, told newsmen that he is "very happy" with the US Air arm in the Far East.

"We are well situated, but we would like to have more," he said.

He told newsmen on his arrival that there were no plans to withdraw the Fifth Air Force from Korea and said, "There would be no change in our policy."

Twining Would Strengthen F.E. Air Forces

Seoul, Nov. 6. United States Air Force Chief of Staff General Nathan F. Twining flew to Seoul today and said he would like to strengthen the Far East Air Forces.

Gen. Twining, in Korea for a quick two-day look at advance elements of the Fifth Air Force, told newsmen that he is "very happy" with the US Air arm in the Far East.

"We are well situated, but we would like to have more," he said.

He told newsmen on his arrival that there were no plans to withdraw the Fifth Air Force from Korea and said, "There would be no change in our policy."

RUSSIAN ENVOY TO PEKING SAYS China's Taiwan Claims Can't Be Ignored

Tokyo, Nov. 6.

Soviet Russia gave its full support today to China's claim to Taiwan and declared that Peking's voice could not be ignored in world politics.

Soviet Ambassador to China, P. Yudin, said the Russian people hoped the Chinese people would recover their sovereign rights over Taiwan and achieve victory in their righteous task."

A Peking radio broadcast heard in Tokyo quoted from a speech the Soviet diplomat delivered at a reception held in Peking tonight commemorating the 38th anniversary of the October Socialist Revolution.

Important Power

"The People's Republic of China today is an important power in the development and advancement of international relations," Ambassador Yudin told the 1,200 persons attending the reception.

"International issues, in particular those of the Far East, cannot be solved without the participation" of the Peking regime, he said.

The Peking broadcast said China's Premier Chou En-lai and Vice-Chairman Chu Teh were present at the reception.—United Press.

POCKET-SIZE LOUDSPEAKER

New York, Nov. 6. The Radio Corporation of America today unveiled what it called "the smallest loudspeaker ever built" for use in pocket-size transistor radios.

The miniature speaker is only 2½ inches in diameter and a little more than one inch thick. An RCA spokesman said it incorporates "radical changes in loudspeaker design."

ROA said the tiny speaker's performance is comparable "in all respects" to earlier type speakers.—United Press.

Unsatisfactory

School Age

Appetites

Sydney, Nov. 6. A Health Department Survey has shown that one third of Sydney's school children have lunches of soft drinks, sweets and ice-creams, some of them spending as much as 4s. These lunches were regarded by the survey as "unsatisfactory."

One-third have "unsatisfactory" lunches, and the other third "reasonably good" menus.

"Unsatisfactory" lunches were described as of cakes, sweet biscuits, bottled drinks, chocolates, other sweets and icecreams.

PARENTS' CLASSES

The "unsatisfactory" lunches were eaten at home or brought from home.

Director of schools medical service, Doctor E. S. Myers, urged nutritional classes for parents. He prescribed this as a satisfactory lunch for a child: one or more sandwiches or bread rolls filled with meat, cheese, egg or fish; additional sandwiches (according to capacity) with such fillings as salad, peanut butter, dried fruit, vegetable or meat extract and a piece of fruit.

In addition the child should drink the milk supplied by the school at morning recess.—China Mail Special.

Train Jumpers Rounded Up

Karachi, Nov. 6. About 170 passengers were rounded up from a train here because they were travelling without tickets.

All were fined amounts ranging from five rupees (about 7s 6d) to 30 rupees (about 4s). Thirty of them who could not pay the fines were sent to prison.—China Mail Special.

SOAPY WATER

IS GOOD FOR PLANTS: USE BATH SURPLUS IN THE GARDEN.

WATER IS PRECIOUS

PHOTOGRAPHS

by our Staff Photographers

Tattoo, Macao Grand Prix, Red Cross Society Ball, Quarry Bay School Sports, Governor Tours Squatter Areas, Boys & Girls Club Exhibition, U.S. Arrivals from Red China, Reynell Show at 33 General Hospital, All Souls Day Service at Happy Valley, Red Cross Distribute Clothing to Fire Victims, H.M.S. Newcastle Farewell Concert Fire at Fa Hui Village, Kowloon Chung Chi College Celebration, H.K. Art Club Social Evening, All Local Sports Local Presentations, Local Weddings, Local Birthdays, Local Funerals, Local Weddings, Local Birthdays, Local Funerals.

SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST, LTD.

Windsor Street

AT THE COURT OF A MODERN SOLOMON

By Oliver Messel

OLIVER HILARY Sambourne Messel, the last of whose stage designs reads like a modern theatrical history of England, is now, at 51, exploring a real-life setting as fantastic as any of his own creations—the Court of the Kabaka of Buganda. Messel, a friend of the Kabaka, was invited to share this reinstated chieftain's triumphal return to Kampala; he is one of the few Englishmen to penetrate the place and take part in all its ceremonies. He reports:

IN SIDE the gates and it would appear. They remain around like charming rugs all day and most of the night.

It was difficult to pick our way through them, and to avoid stepping on finger or toe.

Hands stretched out, waving to friends of the Kabaka.

Inside, at last the Kabaka was at home.

Here was a brilliant array, a picture of dazzling national dresses; chieftains from neighbouring states, dusky beauties in elegant Western dress, scholars and statesmen, all illustrating themselves before their Kabaka and his family in succession.

And around the palace these crowds remain in perpetual obsequies, and although endless hospitality is offered at the palace there appears no fixed time for meals.

It was late at night when celebrations died down at the New Palace.

The Kabaka then retired to the more intimate atmosphere of the Old Palace of his grandfather.

FOR MISS CILENTO

STARDOM IS SO LONELY!

By EVELYN IRONS

BLONDE, 5 ft. 4 in., tawny-haired Diane Cilento is the latest English girl to make a big hit in New York. They are building her up (as if that were necessary) as London's Lollobrigida.

Only one of this city's seven daily newspaper drama critics ventured to be bored by "Tiger At The Gates" when it opened on Broadway a fortnight ago. The theatre is packed out for the next 14 weeks; it took more than £10,000 the first week. It looks like settling in for a run of at least six months.

In a way, this is sad news for wistful gamine Diane. For her Italian husband, Andrea Vito, is 3,000 miles away in London.

Another London actress joins New York's hit list. Life for Miss Cilento should be wonderful... except that success keeps her 3,000 miles from a certain Mr Volpe.

He is coming over to see me at Christmas," Diane said. "But Christmas is a long way off. There's just a chance he can make it sooner... I don't know."

Every day Andrea telephones to Diane at her Manhattan hotel. "And sometimes I call him, too," she said. Their separation was just "one of those things," she explained. "He has just got his permit to work in England translating for Sir Alexander Korda. So he couldn't come to America. And I signed my contract for this play before we got married."

Just as in London, glamorous Helen of Troy is an off-beat, Brando-ish character off-stage. She is completely unspoiled by the adulation she is getting here.

Then came what to me was the most exciting time of all. Across the lawns under the flowering trees, within the receding walls of the inner court, comes an elusive echoing sound.

The angelinde—a kind of xylophone with a sound rather like Chinese windharps, the scented trees and rippling music, give a magic atmosphere.

The amadinda is fascinating to look at—two stems of a banana tree support a row of graduated tubes of hollow wood from between which sprout reeds like an arch of whisks, on either side of which sit three or four Baganda playing ceaselessly.

Strange Harps

The special battery of drums of the Kabaka are housed near in a rectangular pavilion of reeds. Starting with the faintest sound they rise into crescendo of rhythm. The Kabaka is an expert on the drums himself, and nothing gives the drummers more delight than when he joins in.

One sacred drum, a tall cylindrical shape of carved wood stretched with the skin of a lizard, must not be touched by anyone but its special master. Its sound is clear and staccato.

A circle of Baganda sit squatting before the Old Palace, and sometimes under the gabled portico decorated with reeds the Kabaka sits watching dances or listening to the music of strange harps which are of the same design as those found in the Egyptian tombs.

Suddenly out of the darkness appear figures who fling themselves at his feet and it all seems so perfectly fitting as he smiles and talks to them.

The Presser of Clothes, a wonderful old character with a white beard who had been servant to the Kabaka's father Daudi Chwa, mimed like a jester and offered me a drink of banana wine (not my cup of tea).

Spiced Dishes

Other refreshments and jugs of wine were brought in and offered on bended knee like the Angel Gabriel.

Informal meals were served: delicious kinds of curried rice with spices and grated coconut, and the special Ugandan dish of green bananas cooked in banana leaves of which I am glad to have the recipe.

Undaunted by the continual ritual ceremonies which would exhaust most people, the Kabaka takes it all in his stride, and one comes away feeling that a glimpse into the Court of King Solomon would not have been more exciting.

EXERCISE

For exercise here she likes to go to a shade ranch and gallop around like a female Davy Crockett, or his Australian equivalent.

She hates to travel in taxis (I always know the way to places better than the drivers), so she intends to get around the way she did in London—on an Italian motor-scooter. Burl Ives, the rip-roaring father in Tennessee Williams' "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," did that for a while, but couldn't take the New York traffic. Diane thinks she is made of stevier stuff.

The only trouble is that these things are so expensive here," she said. "They cost just over £130."

Unlikely so many British actresses who leap to sudden success on Broadway, Diane is not at all starry-eyed about New York.

BLACK-FRINED

Those enormous black-fringed orbs of hers (she says they are green, or maybe maroon glace) take it all in with the sophistication of a girl who has travelled the globe, attended an American girls' school while her doctor father, Sir Raphael Cilento, was a member of Australia's UN delegation, and the rest. Diane expected it to do in the field of foreign policy, and therefore had their support. They were convinced that the

"This taught me," she says implausibly, "how to stay in the lights when on stage."

Diane has just celebrated her 22nd birthday.

DURING recent weeks the situation in Indonesia has caused great disappointment and concern to international Communism.

Until the end of July this year, Communists all over the world anticipated that the country would be an easy prey. The nationalist Sastroamidjojo Government, which was then in power in Indonesia, did more or less what the Communists expected it to do in the field of foreign policy, and therefore had their support. They were convinced that the Communist Party outside was a staunch opponent of Bolshevism.

There was little doubt in the Communist mind that the tactics of peaceful penetration would be as successful in Indonesia as the open armed struggle had been in China and North Vietnam.

Many assets

The ranks of the Communist Party of Indonesia were swelling steadily. By the spring of 1955, it was larger than any other of the central organ of the Soviet Communist Party are holding the decisive governmental posts in Indonesia. This creates a most awkward and embarrassing situation for the Soviet Communists, who have so far failed to produce an explanation to their public as to how the Indonesian Government could so easily fall into the hands of "traitors."

This embarrassment was reflected in the articles which the Soviet press devoted to the tenth anniversary of the proclamation of the Indonesian Republic. Although this event was celebrated only a few days after the formation of the new Government both Pravda and Izvestia ignored the latest Indonesian events. Izvestia even went on paying tribute to the Sastroamidjojo government, but some of the Tass messages which the Soviet press published under a Jakarta dateline clearly expressed Soviet Russia's displeasure at the changes in Indonesia.

Anger, dismay

They took great pains to pick out unfavourable Indonesian press statements, asserting that the Cabinet had no influence among the people and that it had links with foreign circles. In fact there had not been any proper editorial comment in the Soviet press. However, certain Communist newspapers in the satellite countries have been much less guarded. They have clearly expressed their anger and dismay at the Communist setback in Indonesia.

An article which Neues Deutschland, the chief mouthpiece of the East German Communists, published in August was characteristic. In this respect, it alleged that Indonesia's new government was acting on foreign orders and that it had embarked on a rule of terror which would render free elections impossible.

The Communists are now leaders and they may try to stage a comeback. They will probably carry on their bid for power by other means and in the use of such "other means" the Indonesian Communists have done a considerable amount of damage to the Indonesian political scene must have come as a shock to the Soviet Union and China.

Last May, Pravda published an article which described the Moslem Party as a "reactionary Moslem Party expressing the interests of the Dutch-American imperialists and the big landowners." The same article referred to the Opposition in Indonesia as "Chiang Kai-shek agents and traitors."

And now the very people who have been situated in such an unusual way in the columns of the central organ of the Soviet Communist Party are holding the decisive governmental posts in Indonesia. This creates a most awkward and embarrassing situation for the Soviet Communists, who have so far failed to produce an explanation to their public as to how the Indonesian Government could so easily fall into the hands of "traitors."

This embarrassment was reflected in the articles which the Soviet press devoted to the tenth anniversary of the proclamation of the Indonesian Republic. Although this event was celebrated only a few days after the formation of the new Government both Pravda and Izvestia ignored the latest Indonesian events. Izvestia even went on paying tribute to the Sastroamidjojo government, but some of the Tass messages which the Soviet press published under a Jakarta dateline clearly expressed Soviet Russia's displeasure at the changes in Indonesia.

Anger, dismay

They took great pains to pick out unfavourable Indonesian press statements, asserting that the Cabinet had no influence among the people and that it had links with foreign circles. In fact there had not been any proper editorial comment in the Soviet press. However, certain Communist newspapers in the satellite countries have been much less guarded. They have clearly expressed their anger and dismay at the Communist setback in Indonesia.

An article which Neues Deutschland, the chief mouthpiece of the East German Communists, published in August was characteristic. In this respect, it alleged that Indonesia's new government was acting on foreign orders and that it had embarked on a rule of terror which would render free elections impossible.

The Communists are now leaders and they may try to stage a comeback. They will probably carry on their bid for power by other means and in the use of such "other means" the Indonesian Communists have done a considerable amount of damage to the Indonesian political scene must have come as a shock to the Soviet Union and China.

This is more honest, at least than falsely encouraging the British. Let Britain know where Uncle Sam stands—and what's more, let us arrange for him to keep on standing in the same place for more than five minutes at a time!"

DISMAY

Most people think it is to be dead. No, Stevenson.

"Home we go—to the consoling annual commentary on how they don't make cars like they used to."

London Express Service

What Will His Views Be Like

IF ADLAI GETS INTO THE WHITE HOUSE?

★ ★ ★

By Rene MacColl

land" is traditionally the heartland of isolationism.) There has, thinks Stevenson, lately been a recrudescence of isolationism. McCarthy is far from finished. The Old Adam (American style) lurks just below the surface of international-style sweet reasonableness.

There is, thinks the front-runner of the Democratic Party, a real danger that if something dramatic and discouraging happens in Europe—Italy going Communist, for instance—America might disgustedly withdraw her troops from Europe and curl in behind her shell.

DURING his recent visit to the United States, Roving Reporter Rene MacColl stopped off in Chicago, heart of America's Mid-West—and home of Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic candidate for the American Presidency in 1952, and almost certainly again next year. The heart attack suffered by Republican President Eisenhower had two immediate political effects: (1) The presidential campaign, which was expected to be one of the shortest in U.S. history, instantly started nearly a year ahead of time.

(2) The prominent men engaged in the present silent struggle for power agreed tactfully that it would be only proper, in view of the President's illness, to refrain as far as possible from public comment on electioneering topics. For that reason, this article by MacColl cannot be directly attributed to any one man. But it can be taken as representing the views of Mr Stevenson, who now stands a better-than-ever chance of being the next U.S.A. President.

The world—America's allies as well as her potential foes—was constantly made uneasy by what sounded like threats of drastic impending action. The Democrats feel that while there must be no lack of strength, it is undesirable to far as possible from public comment on electioneering topics. For that reason, this article by MacColl cannot be directly attributed to any one man. But it can be taken as representing the views of Mr Stevenson, who now stands a better-than-ever chance of being the next U.S.A. President.

The Democrats are well aware that this serves only to irritate and dismay America's allies. Stevenson personally is in favour of a generous tariff policy, but he entertains no illusions about the attitude on this matter that any U.S. Congress ever likely to be elected will adopt.

So Stevenson feels strongly that America's allies should be told "what the score is," without equivocation.

I do think, though that Stevenson has a point when he says it would be only frank to tell us what the score is on tariffs, bids for U.S. power projects, and so on. That makes sense.

Well, what's what Adlai Stevenson thinks. My own belief is that what it is worth is that we have, in the United States, a staunch and completely dependable ally, whatever party is in power.

Republicans—Democrats—what's the difference? They are all Americans, and I think that, if a crisis were to come, they would act just about the same towards Britain.

I do think, though that Stevenson has a point when he says it would be only frank to tell us what the score is on tariffs, bids for U.S. power projects, and so on. That makes sense.

And that reminds us that while every right to do whatever he wishes concerning his trade and her tariffs—do have we.

We can't do that, if we can't stand up to the British Commonwealth states nations.

just say
Pink Plymouth
please'

Whenever, wherever, however, you drink gin, you strike a shrewd blow for old-time standards when you call for PLYMOUTH GIN.

SOLE AGENTS:
CALDBECK, MACCREDIE & CO., LTD.

This sudden change of the Indonesian political scene must have come as a shock to the Soviet Union and China. Last May, Pravda published an article which described the Moslem Party as a "reactionary Moslem Party expressing the interests of the Dutch-American imperialists and the big landowners." The same article referred to the Opposition in Indonesia as "Chiang Kai-shek agents and traitors."

And now the very people who have been situated in such an unusual way in the columns of the central organ of the Soviet Communist Party are holding the decisive governmental posts in Indonesia. This creates a most awkward and embarrassing situation for the Soviet Communists, who have so far failed to produce an explanation to their public as to how the Indonesian Government could so easily fall into the hands of "traitors."

This is more honest, at least than falsely encouraging the British. Let Britain know where Uncle Sam stands—and what's more, let us arrange for him to keep on standing in the same place for more than five minutes at a time!"

DISMAY

Most people think it is to be dead. No, Stevenson.

This Funny World

"I'm going to stop going steady with you, Harry, but I think it's only fair that I give you two weeks' notice."

YOUR BIRTHDAY... By STELLA

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 7

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22)—Be careful with your body on Monday, as you are trying to solve the mystery of the unknown. Friend or foe? It may be that you have a constructive understanding of other people and probably would do well in the field of psychology. However, there will be many who will not have intimate knowledge of you, so be wary.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—Be careful to avoid any kind of emotional entanglement or you will get into trouble.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 20)—Mind your own business and you can avoid trouble.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—If you are positive and constructive, you are likely to get full co-operation with your plans.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 20)—It is the effects of recent overwork that is to take it a little easier today.

CROSSWORD

1. The Indian lady (4) 2. mixed up (4) 3. the Exchange (4) 4. others—only one (4) 5. the (4) 6. One Across may be the (4) 7. Wild & man this means (4) 8. ped companion (4) 9. the (4) 10. Some (4) 11. the (4) 12. Steal from Mr. Burns. (4) 13. With an added something (4) 14. State, with an added something (4) 15. Edgar Allan Poe wrote about (4) 16. A man who is not (4) 17. You can't go across if you tell them. (4) 18. Dan all mixed up (4) 19. Squeaked around. (4) 20. maybe of a (4) 21. Down. (6) 22. Nothing, she said. (4) 23. Doctor opposite prompt. (4)

Saturday's solution.

CHESS PROBLEM

By H. HERMANSON

Black, 8 pieces.

White to play: mate in two.
Solution to Saturday's problem:
1. BxKt, 1. KxP, 2. BxKt
1. BxKt, 1. KxP, 2. RxQKt
(dub.) 1. KxP, 2. RxQKt

• JACOBY ON BRIDGE

'Stolen' Trick Gains Contract

By OSWALD JACOBY

TODAY'S hand illustrates the principle that there's more to bridge than you can learn in the textbooks. Some hands cannot be made against perfect defence, and the duty of the declarer is to encourage an opponent to make a plausible mistake.

South won the opening heart lead and considered his resources. He was sure to win two hearts and three spades. He needed four additional tricks in clubs and diamonds combined. Unfortunately, however, each of these suits would provide only three tricks. Consequently, South needed some combination of club and diamond tricks to make his contract.

A guileless player would begin on one of the minor suits and knock out the ace. Buck would come a heart, and South's second copper would be forced out.

Among those born on this date are Robert Dale Owen reformer, Marie Curie scientist, Margaret Leech novelist, Royal G. Copeland, Alyda D. Wright Peter E. Eby, actress, Leatrice Joy actress.

And what the stars have in store for you tomorrow select you birthday star and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 8

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22)—Be careful with your body on Monday, as you are trying to solve the mystery of the unknown.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—Be careful to avoid any kind of emotional entanglement or you will get into trouble.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 20)—Mind your own business and you can avoid getting into an argument with a troublesome and vindictive person.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—If you are positive and constructive, you are likely to get full co-operation with your plans.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 20)—It is the effects of recent overwork that is to take it a little easier today.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 22)—Not the best day in the world for going out on the town. You can't seem to make up your mind.

Taurus (April 21-May 21)—Show initiative, now more than ever, and don't let yourself be used.

Gemini (May 22-June 21)—There are some things which you cannot do something about. Crossing fingers ahead of time is not good!

Cancer (June 22-July 21)—Your intuitions are keen, but be a little careful that it isn't impulse that another guiding you.

Lion (July 22-Aug. 23)—Keep close to the path of duty and don't attempt experiments just now. Routine duties pay the best dividends.

Virgo (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—Business and pleasure don't always mix, and this is one time when that is true! Stick to business.

Libra (Sept. 24-Oct. 22)—Business and hard facts must be left to take care of themselves, but this is one day when you may have to face the music.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 22)—

South's only hope was to sneak by one trick in either clubs or diamonds and then switch to the other suit to get three more tricks. It would do no good to lead a club at the second trick, since there was no reason for an opponent to refuse the first club trick.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

East took the ace of clubs, but now South had nine tricks. The "stolen" diamond was his ninth trick, giving him game and rubber.

Instead, South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

South led the jack of diamonds at the second trick. West played low, thinking that

South was planning a finesse against the queen. This was just what South had hoped for. The jack of diamonds held the trick, and South immediately switched to clubs.

RAF 2, CAA 1

FRILLY TIP-TAPPING CAA GO DOWN TO A LIVELY STRAIGHT-LACED RAF SIDE

By I. M. MacTAVISH

Let's deal with first principles first. The object of the game is to score goals and on that basis alone the Airmen were worthy winners.

No matter what was happening around them they were always trying to get the ball into the net by the most direct route... the Athletics on the other hand seemed imbued with the idea that nothing mattered as far as goal scoring was concerned unless it was embellished with a purposeless garland of flicks, fluffs, taps and passes.

In the first half when the Chinese enjoyed a period of opportunity the run of the game simply continued out for one plus a yellow shirt who would have a snap shot at the RAF goal. It screamed too and 10 less loudly for the yellow-shaded Chinese inside-forwards to swing the ball about but to the voice in the wilderness he cried in vain.

The Airmen have found a powerful new addition to their attack in Leonard. He has a sound sense of positional play and is not afraid to hold the ball when necessary or shoot when the chance presents itself. What a different story I would be writing if he had been on the opposite side.

The game got off to a lively start. The styles of the teams were in marked contrast and right from the first whistle it was obvious that the Airmen of a hard hitting mood.

SCORING CHANCES

The CAA boys had two grand scoring chances in the opening minutes but over elaboration and reluctance to shoot spoiled both, and they should in fact have been a goal behind in the fifth minute when a high cross into the goalmouth found Tam Kai-moon all on his own. Hon Kan had rolled to his goal line but the inside-right somehow misjudged the flight of the ball and sent it over the top.

Price then had a chance to show what a good goalkeeper he is and a flying leap to push a fast Sun special round the post and a neck-in-the-neck drive to thwart Tam Kai-moon were examples of goalkeeping at its best.

The RAF took the lead in the 26th minute and the score was 1-1 which is a testimony to vigilant officials as to good play. A wing on the right, McLennan, kicked his man with a brilliant overhead move and lofted the ball into the goalmouth. Anxious eyes watched it in flight and a cluster of defenders and attackers converged on it as it dropped.

It appeared to me that Blagburn had there first and squeezed the ball over the line before a long, slow knock it out again. This was soon confirmed as the linesman's flag shot up and the referee was pointing to the middle of the field.

Blagburn did in fact get the handshakes with much of the credit for the build-up going to McLennan... but the winger got no credit a few minutes later when he was spoken to by the referee for keeping the ball away when a decision was given against him.

The Airmen had a bad spell at the beginning of the second half and were soon in trouble. Panic beset the rear lines during a strong CAA attack and while all was in confusion Chow Shiu-hung cracked one into the net to level the scores.

A few minutes later Bretell in sheer desperation almost drove a clearance through his own goal and from the resultant corner-kick the ball just scraped past the post.

Slowly but surely the RAF won the game back in their favour and the writing was on the wall for some time before Clarke got the vital second goal.

Ho Kan kept a good goal but neither back really succeeded in subduing the RAF wingers. Ho Sling played well at centre-half, and Ho Kai-chiu—in spite of his "pushing" way—did a lot of good work at right-half. Right-winger Tam Kam-moon wasted several good first half chances and Chow Shiu-hung was the forward star in a line that never produced its best form... due mainly to the fact that the goalkeeper, who was well beaten, had taken some active action.

Play deteriorated after this and while the possibility of the RAF increasing their lead was always present there seemed little possibility of the over-eager CAA getting a goal.

DIFFERENT NOTE

It was a pity that what had been a bright and spirited game early on should finish on a different note. Chow Shiu-hung and Toth were both booked by the referee and the man with the whistle also had to do some stern speaking to Lo Un, Stoker, Blagburn and Clarke.

For the RAF Price got full marks for a good afternoon's work between the posts; Bretell improving with every game and if he can overcome the weakness of being beaten on the inside he must soon come into the reckoning for representative honours.

TEAMS

CAA: Hon Kan, Cheng Yuk-keung, Lo Un, Ho Kai-chiu, Ho Sling, Young Kwoh-kit, Tam Kam-moon, Chow Heung-cheung, Chow Shiu-hung, Tam Sum-chuen, Szeto Sum.

RAF: Price, Bretell Martin, Johnson, Burns, Stoker, McLennan, Leonard, Toth, Clarke, Blagburn.

Victory went to the better team. In spite of a vociferous group's protestations this difficult game was well handled by referee Sunny Tsang... and the MacTavish Tifler is doffed to him for his quick thinking and courage in correcting a very bad off-side decision... but how we could do without the petty little performances from self righteous players who are generally wrong.

VERDICT

There was also an element of luck for the Tigers yesterday. Early in the 11th minute the referee penalised South China's Kwoh Ying-kee for handling the ball inside the box and from the resultant penalty kick, Lau Kin-chung put Tigers one up with a beautiful angular shot that gave Lau Kin-chung no chance.

Clarke looked badly injured and somehow I could not help but feel that the clash could have been avoided or at least minimised if the goalkeeper, who was well beaten, had taken some active action.

Play deteriorated after this and while the possibility of the RAF increasing their lead was always present there seemed little possibility of the over-eager CAA getting a goal.

RESULTS AT A GLANCE

FIRST DIVISION

NEW OLYMPIC ICE STADIUM

A view of the recently constructed Ice Stadium in the heart of Italy's Dolomite Mountains during its recent dedication ceremony. The Ice Stadium was built for the 1956 Winter Olympics at a cost of 1,300,000,000 lire. The stadium seats 12,000 persons, although four times that number are expected to be on hand for the Winter Olympics.—Express Photo.

Defence Played Prominent Part In Tigers' 3-2 Victory Over South China

By "TOUCHWOOD"

There was a touch of nostalgia about it as Sing Tao's Hau Yeung-sang and Cheung Kam-hoi got together and played leading roles in Tiger's three goals to two victory over last year's Champions, South China, at the Caroline Hill Stadium yesterday.

Defence played a predominant part in helping the Tigers to score their seventh victory in eleven outings and in the 90 minutes of tearaway soccer Sing Tao fully deserved their well earned victory.

Sing Tao's goalkeeper, Tam Nai-huen, left the field early in the sixth minute through injury, but he came back to his post with a bandaged head.

By the eighth minute, South China threatened to open the scoring. Yiu Cheuk-yin's pine-driver went smack into goal-keeper Tam Nai-huen and a minute later left-winger Mok Chun-wah's well-placed shot saw Ho Cheung-yan booting the ball and Yiu Cheuk-yin no chance.

As if this setback for South China wasn't sufficient to thrill the near capacity crowd, a spectacular second half goal scored by Tigers' Ng Wai-man in the 10th minute saw him booting a bunch of defenders and goal-keeper Lau Kin-chung with a sizzling 10 yards drive that was to change the whole complexion of the game.

What beat the South China side in the match was the solid, almost impenetrable defence put up by the Tigers. The Carolines had as much of the attacking as their opponents, but forwards Lee Yuk-tak, Ho Cheung-yan, Yiu Cheuk-yin were given very little room to lift their boots.

In an all-out raid on the South China side, Tigers' Lo Kwok-tai took a shot at goal, but the Caroliners' Kwoh Ying-kee had the misfortune of hitting the ball and Lo Kwok-tai with the help of Lo Kin-chung.

These two snap goals gave the Tigers a 3-1 lead but it was not long before South China returned the compliment with their second and what turned out to be their last goal when Lee Yuk-tak found the net with a picture goal.

Sing Tao came into their own after the 9th minute. Centre-forward Lo Tak-fook trapped a net pass over to Lo Kwok-tai, but the latter threw the ball and when Tigers scored again in the very next minute and this time it was Lo Kwok-tai who beat Lau Kin-chung with the help of Lo Kin-chung.

Both goals gave the Tigers a 3-1 lead but it was not long before South China returned the compliment with their second and what turned out to be their last goal when Lee Yuk-tak found the net with a picture goal.

The best man on the field for South China was their custodian, Lau Kin-chung, whose daring saves earned him rounds of applause. The Caroliners would have lost by a wider margin had it not been for Kin-chung who, time and again dived practically on to the feet of Sing Tao forwards to grab the ball.

Full marks for Sing Tao's Chang Kam-hoi, Lo Kwok-tai and Ng Wai-man for their sterling performances in keeping the South China forwards at arm's length. Special mention must also be made of Hau Yeung-sang who, on two occasions slipped in between the posts when the Tigers' custodian was out of position.

Sing Tao, who won the toss, kicked off, but it was the South China side that started the first raid of the match. Left-winger Mok Chun-wah, centre-forward Yiu Cheuk-yin and inside-left Ho Cheung-yan in turns took pot shots at Tam Nai-huen which came to naught.

Inspired with this goal, Sing Tao were in scoring mood again but this time Lau Kin-chung made two daring dives at the foot of Lo Tak-fook to stop the ball.

By the 22nd minute the Sing Tao side were still in the attack but they found it difficult to beat custodian Lau Kin-chung who put up a much better performance.

Driving a three-litre Masserati which had covered the 334.6 miles in two hours 36 minutes—China Mail Special.

NO UPSETS IN LEAGUE CRICKET PROGRAMME

By "RECODER"

There were no upsets in Saturday's First Division League Cricket matches and overall picture as to who was in the race for the Championship became clearer.

Army North looked at one stage like they might lose three or four points against KCC, but won by four wickets. Army South declared at 214 for five and beat the Optimists by 22 runs at Chater Road and Scorpions beat Recrelo by eight wickets at King's Park.

The standings after Saturday's matches are:

	P	W	D	L	Pts
Army South	5	5	0	0	20
Army North	5	4	1	1	16
Scorpions	5	4	0	1	12
RAF	5	3	0	2	10
Indian, RC	5	2	2	2	10
Craigengower	5	2	1	2	9
Optimists	5	2	0	4	8
KCC	5	1	1	3	6
Police	4	1	0	3	5
Royal Navy	5	0	0	5	0

They were undefeated as Army North won by four wickets. Carnell took four for 33. In eight overs. He wasn't quite at his best, but the wicket suited him.

Bedson scored 78 towards Army South's 214 for five declared against the Optimists. The Indians, with five of their batsmen staying beyond a personal contribution of 20, were nevertheless all out for 192 with Nash (5 for 48) the Army's most successful bowler.

Though opening batsman A.E. Norrora reached 64 and Eddie Gossano was undefeated with 38, Recrelo could only reach 102 against Scorpions. Stanton and Leach took most of the Recrelo wickets. Alec Pearce and Ivor Stanton put on 123 for the Scorpions' second wicket and Scorpions had no great difficulty in winning.

At Happy Valley, Police narrowly defeated the Royal Navy by four runs.

UPSET INDIANS

A left-hander, Taylor, upped the Indian bowling and scored 34. RAF were 30 for one wicket, 62 for two, 75 for three and 97 for four. They won with six wickets intact.

In the other match at Sook-poo, KCC scored 115 against Army North. Gifford being the only batsman to come off. He scored 36. Lipscombe did not take as many wickets as usual, Greenhalgh, bowler breaking both ways, taking six of the KCC wickets for 39 runs.

With Carnell finding form with the ball, Army North were not doing too well in their turn of bat, four wickets being down for 50, five for 60 and six for 78.

Howard-Dobson was caught by Coffey at mid-on off Curtail for two and Lipscombe bowled by Robbie Lee after having scored 14 and things did not look too happy for Army North.

But a change of bowlers suited, Turnill and Greenhalgh and the British victors today were Eric Brown, who vanquished Jerry Barber 3-2, Arthur Lees, and the brilliant young John Jacobs, who upset one of this country's finest, Dr Cary Middlecoff one up.

American winners were Herbert, who licked Sydney Scott 32, PGA Champion Doug Ford, who won over Harry Weetman 3-2, Stan Sneed, who won over the British team captain Dal Rees 3-1, Tommy Bolt, 4-2, victor over Christy O'Conor, and Jackie Burke, 3-2 over Harry Bradshaw.—United Press.

SEESAW BATTLE

Burke and Bradshaw put on a seesaw battle all the way through. The Englishman shot a six under par 66 on the morning round but that got him was a 'tic' with Burke. Jackie pulled two up on the front nine this afternoon with a four under par 32 and closed out the match on the 76th.

Lees, who whipped Marty Fugol, was even with Fugol at the end of 28 holes but went ahead on the 29th when Fugol took a bogey and retained the advantage all the way through. Both were far over par, for the 35 holes played.

Results of the eight singles matches in the Ryder Cup competition were:

Tommy Bolt (U.S.) defeated Christy O'Connor (Britain) 4-2. Chick Harbert (U.S.) defeated Sydney Scott (Britain) 3-2. Doug Ford (U.S.) defeated Harry Weetman (Britain) 3-2. Stan Sneed (U.S.) defeated Dal Rees (Britain) 3-1.

John Jacobs (Britain) defeated Cary Middlecoff (U.S.) 1-up. Arthur Lees (Britain) defeated Marty Fugol (U.S.) 2-1.

Jackie Burke (U.S.) defeated Harry Bradshaw (Britain) 3-2. Eric Brown (Britain) defeated Jerry Barber (U.S.) 3-2. United Press.

FOR SCENICALLY GOOD HEALTH

Barry Appleby

BY ELLIE BETTER

ON

VITAMIN RIB OF RIBS
SWEET POTATOES
MATURED ON THE VINE

Schoolboys' League Soccer Results

Following are the results of Schoolboys' football League matches played yesterday:

Starter League

Intermediate League

King's College

Wah Yee Koon

SATURDAY'S RUGGER*Arunta's Victory Over RAF Island The Day's Biggest Upset

By "PAK LO"

Of all the results of games played on Saturday the defeat of the RAF Island by HMAS Arunta was the biggest upset. Classified by the Navy experts as a "fairly good side," they completely outplayed the Airmen in every department, and fully deserved their victory.

The Airmen on the other side of the harbour, RAF Mainland, also failed to register a win against 48 Brigade, while the Navy drew with the 27 Brigade and the other two games, as prophesied, resulted in a win for the Police over the Club, and for the Gunners, who comfortably retained their unbeaten record by beating H.K. & K. Garrison by 25 points to 3.

One point that I feel should be mentioned before commenting on the various games is the fact that many of the fifteen playing on Saturday failed to turn up on time.

Either that or some of their members straggle up anything up to half an hour after the game has begun.

The Navy on Saturday was one of the teams in question, and a well known referee was heard to remark that it was no longer a case of "The Navy's here. No need to worry," but a question of "Where's the Navy? Start worrying."

In the case in point there was a reasonable excuse, but it is fairly safe to say that if most of the teams who turn up late would start from home a bit earlier instead of having a lunch time siesta, there would be fewer complaints by opponents, referees and spectators.

HMAS Arunta v. RAF Island

The result was never in doubt in this game, for right from the start the Australians flung themselves into the game with a verve and dash that has long been missing from local rugby.

Their tackling was excellent, and before one of the Airmen with the ball could move more than a couple of yards he was well and truly tackled and pinned to the ground.

Admittedly there were a lot of penalties awarded against the Australians, but these were mainly due to lack of knowledge of the laws and over-eagerness to get at the man with the ball.

Three men stood out in the Arunta's fifteen. The full back, McLean, who with a very safe pair of hands and some nice touch kicking took care of the more dangerous attacks by RAF Island.

Burke, one of the centre threes, had a terrific burst of speed, though he looked awkward when running, but it was completely deceptive as the RAF found to their cost.

And finally the fly half, Cheetham, stood out with his nippy breaks through the centre, and his neat handling of his threes. The lineouts, set scrums and loose mauls all resulted in the same thing time and again. Arunta got the ball, and off they went.

The RAF on the other hand, never settled down, and their threes had a poor day. Not only did they get little of the ball, but when they got it they did nothing constructive with it. Their tackling in defence never reached the high standard of the Arunta's back division, and their forwards gave them little bucking.

The firm score came from a three move from the RAF 23 and William went over, but the conversion was missed.

For a while the RAF held the ball, then another three move from a scrum on the RAF 23 saw Cheetham streak over and later converted his try 13-0.

Two minutes passed and then movement was repeated exactly, with the exception that this time it was the RAF who scored and Cheetham converted 13-0.

In the second half the RAF rallied for a short time, but this did not last long, and from a lineout on the 23rd minute Jones went over. Nobuo seemed capable of stopping him. Cheetham converted 18-0.

Then McLean dropped a lovely pass to McLean and Cheetham went out to make it 21-0, and finally from a five-yard scrum Jones went over well out 24-0 as the conversion was missed.

RAF Mainland v. 48 Brigade

This was a good game, but again the Airmen fully deserved to lose. For although their forwards dominated the scrums the backs played like a shower of schoolgirls on a day's outing and completely nullified the hard work put in by the pack.

The lineouts came out about even and as a result the 48 Brigade had a fairly good supply of the ball, and Moore and Blinco in the centre of the three line put their opportunities to good use and they were able to go through the efforts to cuddle them that the RAF backs thought represented tackling.

The 48 Brigade threes never looked better, but that was natural as there was no comparison between them and the Airmen. The Airmen finally lost by 11 points to 3, but had not been for the RAF forwards the score would have reached much larger proportions.

Navy v. 27 Brigade Garrison

Once again it took the Gunners ten minutes to get warmed up in this game as in previous matches. By this I do not mean that for the first ten minutes they are hopeless. Far from it. But it is ten minutes before they click together into a team.

Once again most of the Gunners' fifteen merit mention, but particularly the threes, and the full back. The Gunners' forwards were far and away the best, though Phipps gave them a lot of trouble in the lineouts, but eventually they got the upper hand of him.

I mentioned that Glen and Parkinson would be playing opposite one another. They did indeed, and Glen got ninety per cent of the ball and some of his passes were a joy to behold.

Parkinson, on the other hand, had to cope with a minimum share of the ball from the scrums, and an awkwardly patted back ball from the lineouts now and again.

His passes were not as good as Glen's but as his forwards were slow in getting the ball back he was always harassed by the wing forwards. But when he did get a chance he seized it with both hands and made openings all over the place, but his threes were slow off the mark, and gave the Gunners the chance to catch them.

Both sides tackled well, but as the Garrison tired in the second half the Gunners took full control and added some more points quite easily.

The necessary ten minutes having passed and Gerrard having missed a penalty, the Gunners came to, and attacked to within five yards of the 23rd. But then there was a perfect three move and Gerrard won Maundur over in the corner. Gerrard converted 3-0.

From the 23rd the ball went into touch on the Gunners' 23 and then the Garrison were awarded a penalty which Phipps converted.

Gunners attacked again and ten yards inside the Garrison the Gunners were given a penalty for offside, and Gerrard converted 8-3.

Then later from the same spot on the Garrison 20 there was a smart three move and Wynn scored well out. The conversion was missed. 11-3.

Again the Gunner threes nearly scored but were caught with the ball and, in the loose maul the Gunners were awarded a penalty for holding the ball when tackled. Gerrard's kick hit the upright and bounced in. 14-3.

Next Anderson scored by cutting inside through the centre and scoring under the posts. Buckley converted 18-3.

In the closing minutes Wynn went through after a nice run by Anderson, but the Police were worried about keeping the Club could not break through.

The Police were penalised quite a lot, but each time it was deep in the Club's half of the field, where little danger from the kick remained.

The Club deserve one bit of praise in particular. Not once, I repeat that NOT ONCE were they penalised for an infringement. Not only was this amazing, it was very creditable, and it would seem that at last the laws of the game are beginning to be studied and played to. If only more teams would copy the Club's Saturday example.

One rather strange switch was made from the RAF 23 and William went over, but the conversion was missed.

For a while the RAF held the ball, then another three move from a scrum on the RAF 23 saw Cheetham streak over and later converted his try 13-0.

Two minutes passed and then movement was repeated exactly, with the exception that this time it was the RAF who scored and Cheetham converted 13-0.

In the second half the RAF rallied for a short time, but this did not last long, and from a lineout on the 23rd minute Jones went over. Nobuo seemed capable of stopping him. Cheetham converted 18-0.

Then McLean dropped a lovely pass to McLean and Cheetham went out to make it 21-0, and finally from a five-yard scrum Jones went over well out 24-0 as the conversion was missed.

Police v. Club

The Police won because they tackled. The Club lost because they did not. As simply as that can this game be summed up.

The first half was fairly even. In the second half the Club were seldom in their own half, but against one of the strongest and steadiest defences the Police have ever put up the Club could not break through.

RECORD RUN

French long distance runner Alain Mimoun ending his record-breaking One Hour Run in Algiers to beat a 42-year-old French record held by Jean Bouin, one of France's greatest athletes. Mimoun covered 19.078 kilometres in the hour.—France-Presse Photo.

End This Amateur Hypocrisy

Says DENNIS HART

Tony Trabert's cannon-ball serves will be missing from Wimbledon next year. So will the flowing strokes of Doris Hart.

Why? Both are now paid FOR playing tennis.

But we will see Australia's prodigies Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewall.

Reason: They are paid because they play tennis.

This subtle definition is the latest piece of nonsense in the most farcical sports story of all — that of the amateur tennis player.

Consider the set-up.

Trabert signs professional. Hoad and Rosewall are strongly rumoured to be following suit, with Trabert out of the way the biggest obstacle to Australia regaining the Men's Doubles title at Wimbledon and retaining the Davis Cup is removed.

And possession of the Davis Cup is reckoned to be worth £100,000 a year.

So, hey presto! The sports firms which employ Messrs Hoad and Rosewall suddenly realise that these two particular members of their staffs have been grossly underpaid. A substantial rise puts the matter right. Hoad and Rosewall are paid to compete.

Why can't they?

Well, dash it all old boy, these chaps actually make a living at the same!!—London Express Service.

(COPYRIGHT)*Home Rugger Results

London, Nov. 5.

Following were the Rugby Union results today:

First Welsh International Trial

Reds County Championship

Cumberland and

Westmorland

North Midlands

Guy's Hospital

Herculeans

London Irish

London Scot-

Metropolitan

O.M.T.

Roslyn Park

St Mary's Hosp

Services

Scarborough

Aberdare

Bath

Bedford

Bradford

Cardiff

Cheltenham

Clifton

Coventry

Derbyshire

Devonport

Gloucester

Liverpool

Moseley

Newton

Northern

Penarth

Plymouth

Pontypridd

Rugby

Swansea

Torbay

Wales

Warrington

Barrow

Bilston

Dewsbury

Dudley

Llanelli

Neath

Porthcawl

Pontypool

Rhondda

Shrewsbury

Swindon

Treforest

Whitchurch

Wrexham

Wigan

Worcester

Wolverhampton

Wrexham

Ystradgynlais

Zwinstown

Other

Society

Charity

Match

Inter-School

Blantyre

Shield

seventeen

days

from now

onwards

and

the start

of

the new school

year

and

the new term

begins

on

January

1st

and

the new term

begins

CHINA
MAIL

HONGKONG
PUBLISHED DAILY
(AFTNOON)

Price, 50 cents per copy,
Saturdays 60 cents.
Subscription $6.00 per month.
Postage: China, Macao $1.00 per month; U.S., British Possessions and other countries $1.00 per month.
Newspaper, always welcome, should be addressed to the Editor, business communications and advertisements to the Secretary.
Telephone: 5011 (5 lines).

HOWLOWN OFFICE:
Salisbury Head.
Telephone: 5412.

Classified
Advertisements

20 WORDS $4.00
for 1 DAY PREPAID
ADDITIONAL INSERTIONS
$2.00 PER DAY
10 cents FEE WORLD OVER 20
Births, Deaths, Marriages,
Personal $5.00 per insertion not exceeding 25 words, 25 cents each additional word.
ALTERNATE INSERTIONS
10% EXTRA

If not prepaid a booking fee of 50 cents is charged.

MUSICAL

LATEST LP's consist of Music of Bell, Carols by King's College Chapel,
Cambridge, Songs from James Trinidad, Calypso, Kentucky, Peter
Cyrus, Rock-a-bye Baby, Peter
Lipton, Roger Quilter, Benjamin
Britten etc. From the solo distributors, D. Eema, 4A, Des Voeux
Road, Room 1, 2nd floor, telephone 3010.

STAMPS

SOMETHING EXCLUSIVE, Collector books of assorted stamps
From 20 cents per packet upwards.
An entirely new series. Best
China Morning Post Ltd., Wyndham
Street, Hongkong and Salisbury
Road, Room 1, 2nd floor, telephone 3010.

STAMP ALBUMS — "Collection Builder," series. New stock now available. From South China
Morning Post Ltd., Wyndham
Street, Hongkong and Salisbury
Road, Room 1, 2nd floor, telephone 3010.

To ADVERTISERS

SUNDAY POST-HERALD
Space for commercial advertising should be booked not later than noon on Wednesdays.

For the SOUTH CHINA
MORNING POST and the CHINA MAIL, 48 hours before date of publication.

Special Announcements and Classified Advertisements as usual.

The Hongkong & Yaumati Ferry Co., Ltd.

FERRY SERVICE TO OUTLYING DISTRICTS
(In force on and after the 6th November, 1955)
• Sundays and Holidays only.
+ Sundays, Holidays, and Saturdays only.
CHEUNG CHAU FERRY SERVICE

Leaving HONGKONG for CHEUNG CHAU		Leaving CHEUNG CHAU for HONGKONG
6.20 a.m. — (Direct)		4.00 p.m. — (Via Aberdeen to Wilmer St.)
* 8.25 .. — (Direct)	& S.M.B.	6.45 .. — (Via S.M.B. & Ping Chau)
9.00 .. — (Via Ping Chau & S.M.B.)		7.45 .. — (Direct)
10.00 .. — (Direct)	& S.M.B.	10.20 .. — (Direct)
11.00 .. — (Direct) from Wilmer St.		11.00 .. — (Via S.M.B. & Ping Chau)
1.30 p.m. — (Direct)		11.15 .. — (Direct)
1.45 .. — (Via Ping Chau & S.M.B.)		1.30 p.m. — (Direct)
1.50 .. — (Direct)		1.45 .. — (Via S.M.B. & Ping Chau)
2.30 .. — (Via Ping Chau & S.M.B.)		3.15 .. — (Direct to Wilmer St.)
3.45 .. — (Via Ping Chau & S.M.B.)		4.00 .. — (Via S.M.B. & Ping Chau)
6.00 .. — (Via Aberdeen from Wilmer St.)		5.00 .. — (Direct)
6.20 .. — (Via Ping Chau & S.M.B.)		7.15 .. — (Direct)
6.45 .. — (Direct)		7.15 .. — (Direct)
SILVERMINE BAY FERRY SERVICE
Leaving HONGKONG for SILVERMINE BAY		Leaving SILVERMINE BAY for HONGKONG
9.00 a.m. — (Via Ping Chau)		7.15 a.m. — (Via Ping Chau)
* 10.15 .. — (Direct)		11.20 .. — (Via Ping Chau)
11.00 .. — (Via Ping Chau)		2.00 p.m. — (Via Ping Chau)
* 12.15 .. — (Direct)		5.00 .. — (Via Ping Chau)
3.45 .. — (Via Ping Chau)		5.15 .. — (Via Ping Chau)
6.20 .. — (Via Ping Chau)

PING CHAU FERRY SERVICE

Leaving HONGKONG for PING CHAU		Leaving PING CHAU for HONGKONG
9.00 a.m.		7.40 a.m.
11.00 ..		11.55 ..
1.45 p.m.		2.40 p.m.
2.20 ..		5.45 ..
		5.45 ..

TAI O — CASTLE PEAK FERRY SERVICE

Leaving HONGKONG		Leaving TAI O
2.00 p.m.		7.00 a.m.
Kap Sun Mun .....	3.00 ..	Tung Chung .....	8.00 ..
Cedie Chung .....	4.00 ..	Chi Ma .....	9.15 ..
Tung Chung .....	6.30 ..	Kap Sul Mun .....	10.30 ..
Arriving Tai O .....	6.45 ..	Arriving Hongkong .....

TAI O — SPECIAL FERRY (VIA ABERDEEN)

(From Wilmer St. Ferry Pier)		Leaving TAI O for HONGKONG
Leaving HONGKONG for TAI O .....	4.00 p.m.	Leaving TAI O for HONGKONG .....	4.00 a.m.

SUNDAY &amp; HOLIDAY EXCURSION — DIRECT TO TAI O

Leaving HONGKONG .....		Leaving TAI O .....
9.00 a.m. (Calling at Tung Chung)		5.00 p.m. (Calling at Tung Chung)

TOLO HARBOUR FERRY SERVICE

Leaving TAPIO KAU for TAP MUN		Leaving TAP MUN for TAPIO KAU
8.45 a.m. — (Direct)		8.30 a.m. — (Via Chi Ma, Tai Tan, Lai Chi Chung, Shek Sze Heung & Ma Shui Shui)
(On Sundays only this ferry will leave at 7.45 a.m.)
1.30 p.m. — (Via Ma On Shan, Shek Sze Heung, Lai Chi Chung, Tai Tan and Chiuk Kang).		5.00 p.m. — (Direct)

MESSAGERIES MARITIMES

B.O. Box 53 Queen's Building Tel: 20021

FAST PASSENGER/FREIGHT SERVICE

"LAOS" ..... sailing Dec. 3rd
"VIETNAM" ..... sailing Dec. 31st

FAST FREIGHT SERVICE

"INDUSTRIE MEKONG" ..... sailing Nov. 8th
"MEKONG" ..... sailing Dec. 9th

SCIENCE &amp; ENGINEERING

TRENDS IN SCOTTISH TWEEDS
Increasing Demands For New Versions

SCOTLAND, home of some of the world's most colourful wool cloths, is creating increasing demands for her goods by producing "fashion tweeds" and interesting new versions of her famous traditional tweeds.

But haute couture and tailoring demands for these fabrics are due to several factors. Together with growing interest on the part of designers in the creation of exclusive fabrics, there has been a steady and successful exploitation of smooth cloths in greys, blues and black. The leisure wear craze for tweeds has helped to foster interest, and, of course, there is the traditional aspect of all Scottish fabrics.

The degree of Scotland's current achievement in wool textiles may be judged from production and export figures for 1954 published by the National Association of Scottish Woolen Manufacturers, whose members employ 12,000 people and operate 3,813 looms. Incidentally, the Association does not include Scottish knitwear manufacturers or the producers of Harris and Shetland tweeds. Production totalled 20,791,922 square yards of which 8,478,157 square yards went overseas. Valued at about £10 million these exports were an all-time record.

In addition to these figures there was the big output of Shetland tweed, for which individual figures are not available, and the production total of 5,100,307 yards of Harris tweed, over 70 per cent of which was exported — the bulk being to dollar countries. Tweed's current success is partly due to the American demand for lightweight fabrics. Lightweight tweeds have now been made possible and this is a tribute to the weavers' skill. In their new guise many of the old traditional fabrics, which used to be virtually restricted to sporting and country wear, are suitable for nearly all occasions.

The same weavers have also brought new tweeds — "fashion tweeds" — to the market, and the attractiveness and sometimes rugged nature of these and of the lightweight traditions have captured the heart of Paris. These fabrics have also been in great demand in America and Canada, which seek unusual, sometimes fancy, cloths.

An example of how some Scottish manufacturers are catering for Americans and Canadians is in the production of "personal tweeds" — garments knitted specially in Britain for the woman who wants a tweed suit which is individual. Indeed, Scottish knitwear, particularly that from the border "dollar town," Hawick, has risen to high fashion status in North America — a development which began with a craze for the traditional British twill.

Hawick now earns more dollars than any other textile town of its size in the United Kingdom; it has earned £10 million in dollars in five years, and the popularity of its goods is increasing. Here again, the industry has grown from a cottage industry in which housewives gathered wool from local farms, washed it with the aid of wells, and sat for hours at the spinning wheel and hand looms in their small stone cottages.

Tweed is now a word which is synonymous with "fashion" in many countries. Moreover, there is no sign of its popularity declining. London, Paris, Berlin and New York couture houses have featured fine-textured, close-surfaced tweeds in their collections for some seasons now. Some, such as the fabrics made by the Isle of Bute weavers — an industry formed after the war by the Marquess of Bute — are expected to catch the fancy of Americans, for it is believed to be part of a coat worn by a member of Bonnie Prince Charlie's staff.

High quality goods are of great interest to America, and Scotland can provide these in full measure. Some Scottish fabrics are priced as high as £7 per yard, but this is by no means general.

In view of the quality of some tweeds offered by the Scottish woolen trade gives ample scope to all women's tastes. Men too, are using more Scottish cloths for suits and sports wear, but they rely chiefly on the traditional tweeds for their purposes.

The Scottish woolen industry is of ancient origin but is up-to-date in its ideas. For instance, having encountered amazing success with fabric for men's blue blazers, the industry's designers are now creating alternatives. They are turning to the colourful cloths which have made them famous. However, although the industry has a reasonably good productive capacity, expansion is necessary in some mills if manufacturers are to take advantage of long runs.

In the case of tartan fabrics, the North American market is not the only one interested in genuine clan tartans. One Scottish manufacturer, for instance, recently received inquiries from Arabia. The same mill, by the way, is producing for the fashion market an ancient, unknown tartan. A fragment of this cloth was discovered not long ago during excavations on the site of the Battle of Culloden. This tartan is expected to catch the fancy of Americans, for it is believed to be part of a coat worn by a member of Bonnie Prince Charlie's staff.

To mention merely a few examples of the fashion fabrics now being produced in Scotland, there is wool crepe, which makes attractive afternoon dresses; women's tweed suiting (in interesting shades such as lilac and white, and mimosas, scarlet and other shades of dossin) (for blazers and other garments); natural shaded featherweight tweeds, and a host of fabrics created with the aid of soft-toned yarns.

Financial loss; a manufacturer would be left with quantities of fabric which might not sell elsewhere. In Europe and the Commonwealth, for example, American tastes are generally regarded as being too flamboyant.

One newspaper, the Frankfurt, Nov. 6.

One of the first things any visitor to Germany notes is that almost every man, woman and child here seems to have a briefcase just about everywhere he goes.

One newspaper, the Frankfurt, Nov. 6.

TRADE and COMMERCE SECTION

NEW YORK COTTON MARKET REVIEW

By William T. Plunkett

New York, Nov. 6.
Cotton prices pulled in opposite directions for the second week in a row, swinging over a range of $5 a bale.

At Friday's close the list ruled net 37 points higher to 24 points lower, or up $1.50 to off $1.20 a bale from the preceding week.

Evening-up operations before the government's fourth crop estimate of the season rescheduled to Tuesday, Nov. 8, accounted for a good part of the activity.

Although election day is a legal holiday in the state of New York, the exchange decided to remain open for the report so as to afford the industry time to get ready.

OPTIMISTIC PROSPECTS

While the uncertainty of this year's crop prospects weighed on the deferred deliveries for the nearby month, limited delivery shipments covering against exports to Korea, and rapidly Spain and Yugoslavia joined with Italy in covering against an expanding rate of textile sales, to prop the nearby markets.

Spot December went over 33 cents a pound, the average government loan rate—to show a cumulative recovery of more than $15 a bale from the season's low of 30.43 cents made on Oct. 3.

A steady shrinkage in the stock of certificated cotton available for contract delivery, and the speed-up in producer entries under the government loan programme, generated a good part of the price-lifting power in the nearby months.

SPREAD WIDENS

While nearby December and March were going up, the next December spread was going down. The spread between the two positions widened to around $25 a bale compared with a spread of almost $17 a bale a week ago.

Technicians speculated late in the week on whether the prevailing intra-crop discount did not anticipate some of the possibilities for a lower government loan rate on the next crop.

Looking ahead to the government crop report on Tuesday, the private surveys ranged from 14,300,000 up to 14,800,000 bales, with the average guess of 71 members of the New York Cotton Exchange at 14,545,000 bales. The government's October estimate was 13,298,000 bales. Last year's crop was 13,000,000 bales. —United Press.

The Toughest Congressional Battle

Washington, Nov. 6.
Chairman James P. Richards of the House Foreign Affairs Committee today said that one of the toughest congressional battles now shaping up is over efforts to impose quotas and higher tariffs on imports.

He said the issue strikes at the foundations of President Eisenhower's foreign policy. Mr. Richards, hard-pressed by textile interests in his own district to impose restrictions on Japanese textile imports, said, however, the present flexible tariff arrangement must be maintained.

US industry, which is building up surpluses has got to sell abroad, he said, but can't do so by reverting to the old high tariff policy. "That's where Eisenhower is right," he said. "If they don't live and take, they're crazy."

If quotas are imposed on one item, "all the lobbies will get together, and the first thing you know we're going to revert to the old cutthroat stuff," Mr. Richards said.

US industry already has protection against unfair foreign competition in "peril point" and anti-dumping provisions, he said.

Mr. Richards spearheaded foreign policy legislation through the House under both Presidents Truman and Eisenhower.—United Press.

US Economy Overcomes Uncertainty

FOREIGN GOODS WILL HAVE BIG SHARE OF CHRISTMAS MARKETS

By JOHN MORKA

New York, Nov. 6.
An aura of contentment appears to have settled over the US economy.

Gone are many of the political and economic uncertainties which seemed so troublesome to many on news of President Eisenhower's illness several weeks ago.

Businessmen now continue to map huge expansion programmes, seemingly confident of the nation's growth in population and consumer demand.

They show more concern with the long-range implications of automation and automation with the starting new industrial processes and sales techniques. There is more concern with cost-cutting possibilities, with new emphasis on the dynamic potentialities inherent in the US business machine.

And jobs continue at peak level. More is plentiful. People show no signs of pulling back on their purse strings. Retailers are looking ahead to the arrival of and most profitable Christmas season in years, and foreign imports will probably get the big share in the Yuletide bonanza, culminating what appears to have been a last effort by American retail trade to get every possible edge with the latest gadgets from all over the world.

Not Worried

Experts do not seem worried about the vulnerability of the US economy. The strength of the economy appears to be something more and more people are taking for granted. There is growing assurance that the US Government can, with its credit policy, so manipulate the economy as to forestall any major inflationary-deflationary trend.

Typical of thinking today is that of many financial institutions that the government's recent anti-inflation moves appear to be meeting with success. Further affirmation of the high level of business activity came last week from the First National City Bank of New York. A special compilation of some 749 corporate earnings reports published to date gives combined net income of about $2,800,000,000 after taxes in the third quarter, a decrease of 5 per cent from the second quarter but a boost of 33 per cent from the third quarter of 1954.

The net income for the first nine months totalled $7,700,000,000, an increase of 31 per cent over the same period of 1954. Four out of five reporting companies registered gains over

"Because of the importance of the United States in the world

Weekly US Textile Markets Review

New York, Nov. 6.

Cotton goods sellers last week said the buying movement, under way for a month or more, picked up in scope and speed during the week when consumers found supplies tightening on a longer list of constructions.

Mill executives, reporting an extra-heavy backlog of orders on print cloths, compared the current delivery situation with that of the period following the outbreak of hostilities in Korea.

Print cloth yarn fabrics, especially the bellwether 80-squared four-yard number, have been the pivotal point of strength. But now the mills report a "steady and sizable volume of buying in omburys, bag sheetings, wide industrial sheetings, drills, twills, duck cloth, drapery and other fabrics."

Some users, who have been holding back expecting a flood of second-hand offerings, have been caught short. These firms, keeping a side glance on the sagging raw cotton market, apparently regarded the buying movement as a "wash in the pan" and banked on resales when the buying flurry passed.

Combing Market

But since this failed to happen, brokers said, the lagged buyers have been growing uneasy, and are combing the United Press.

Ample Opportunity

"The average American investor," it added, "can find ample opportunities in the United States. He does not need to look outside for his investments or speculation."

The reverse is more likely. Standard notes, adding:

"Nevertheless, when the tone of economic dispatches, from a whole group of countries changes from glowing enthusiasm to worried criticism, the matter deserves attention. This may be only a temporary phase, but if the economic difficulties and the more cautious are extended, the international repercussions could be quite substantial."—United Press.

Spunners also reported an expanding yarn demand. A number of sales yarn spinners have been forced to turn down substantial orders because of inability to meet delivery dates. High prices of nearby cotton plus increased minimum wage rates are expected to keep yarn prices higher, spinners claimed.

Hard fibres featured weakness in sisals while flax and hemp held steady. British East African sisal settled to lower prices for the sixth week in a row as buyers remained withdrawn.

In rayon grey goods, new business developed at a sub-routine pace, although printers did show some interest in quick deliveries of fabric, taken along easily, and are combed the United Press.

Paris, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of England statement for the week ended Nov. 2, read as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of England statement for the week ended Nov. 2, read as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

London, Nov. 6.
The Bank of France statement for the week ended Oct. 27, reads as follows:

JOHN CLARKES
CASEBOOK

Tim Marks Time

Tim is an Irishman from County Wexford, but the chief love of his life is the British Army. Three times Tim has joined the Army, and three times left when his terms of service ended, with the thanks of all the generals for his help in winning their wars, or as near to that as a man can get these days — a character marked "Very good."

In between soldiering Tim has occupied himself in a variety of ways. From time to time he has returned to Wexford — and a fine sort of hero's welcome they gave him there.

The first time he went, Tim's welcome took the form of being put on probation for shop-breaking, and the next time it was hard labour for forgery.

INGRATITUDE

Men possessed of less patience than Tim might have cut out their homeland from further consideration after such rough treatment. But next time Tim left the Army, he went back again to Wexford. That time, he got 12 months' hard labour for attempted shop-breaking.

When he had served the sentence, Tim turned his back on his native land. He came to London, meaning to sample life here as a civilian.

Almost before he had a chance to do so, the ungrateful English were apeing their Irish cousins. Tim was sentenced to 18 months' prison for stealing a cheque book and using the cheques it contained to his own temporary advantage.

A LESSON

"It would serve them right," Tim thought, when he came out of prison next, "if I never joined any of their armies any more!"

And for a time he did just that, remaining a civilian. He got a job as a kitchen-porter in a block of flats in St. James's.

There, Tim shared a room with a workmate, whose peculiar habit it was to use as a savings-bank an old gramophone he kept in his room. Tim thought of the ruses he had seen men employ in bar-room round the world, to keep their money safe.

Never, he thought, had he met anyone mad enough to think of a portable gramophone as a safe-deposit. He decided his roommate needed to be taught a lesson, and one day he helped himself to the £4 the gramophone contained.

FOOTSBLOGGING

With the money Tim took himself to Southend and treated himself to a wonderful short week-end there. When the last penny of his workmate's savings was spent Tim set out to walk to London. The urge to join up had come upon him again.

He took the wrong turning somewhere and found himself at last in Chelmsford, and by that time, for all his fine careers as an infantryman, his feet were on the verge of mutiny. He could walk no further.

Wearily, Tim hobbled into a police station and gave himself up for his London crime. A London policeman was sent for, who escorted Tim to Bow Street and produced him in the dock there next morning.

TIME TO THINK

Tim's story was told to Mr. K. Barnetough, the magistrate, and Tim handsomely added a few words to the wife, saying: "I'm extremely sorry to everyone, and especially to the man I took the money from, which of course, I intend to pay back."

But the magistrate had heard of Tim's record by then. He said to the soldiering Irishman: "I don't think you're safe to be about, you know. One day you'll learn, perhaps. You'll have three months to think about it now, anyway. Go to prison for three months."

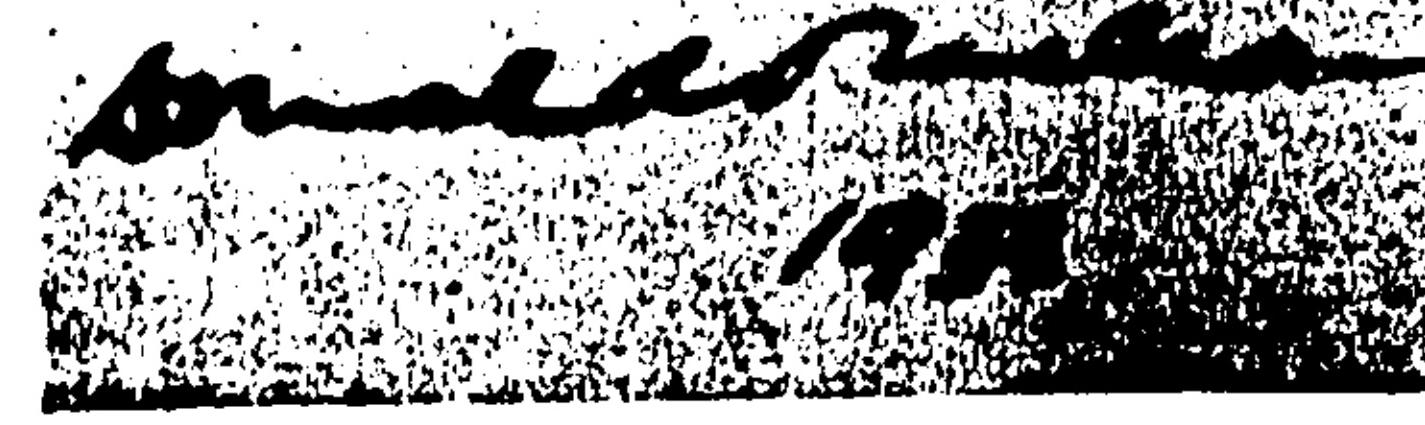

Tim nodded and limped away. A few weeks in a cell would give his feet a chance to mend. By the time he came out he should be in fine fettle for another spell of service with the Army.

Printed and published by WILLIAM ALICE GREENHAM for Morning Post Limited at 1-3 Wyndham Street, City of Victoria, is the Colony of Hongkong.

From Our Files 100 Years Ago

A window ledge in an attic... a pile of dusty books — left behind by missing diplomat Donald Maclean. Mrs. de la Torre, who now lives in the house, opens one.

The 8-leaf signature in one of the books.

Political Books Lie In The Dusty Attic

Beacon Shaw, the house on the hill at Tatsfield, Surrey, from which Donald Maclean vanished four years ago, still has odd links with the missing diplomat and his family. The flare-up in the Maclean-Burgess affair has aroused fresh interest in the house.

Some villagers hint that the house is haunted. Others call it by its old name — The Grange. Mrs. Melinda Maclean, the missing diplomat's American wife, left instructions that the house was to be sold if she did not return within a year. She and her three children disappeared in December 1951.

Today Beacon Shaw is divided and provides a home for two families.

One part is occupied by Mr. E. C. Leslie, his wife and four children, and the other by Mr. Eric de la Torre, his wife and two-month-old baby son.

Dust, books

Mr. de la Torre is an ex-Commando man and survivor of the raid on St. Nazaire. Mr. Leslie was a wartime officer in the King's Shropshire Light Infantry.

The two young wives today spoke of the things at Beacon Shaw which would be familiar to the Macleans if they ever returned there.

Mrs. Leslie led the way to an attic where there is still a pile of dusty books, several of them with Donald Maclean's signature on the flyleaf.

SIDE GLANCES By Galbraith

"I'm glad this report card is kind of law—Dad, always gets such a big kick when I improve!"

CHINA MAIL

SHEAFFER'S

ADMIRAL SNORKEL PEN

THE VILLAIN OF THE PIECE
IS A COCKNEY ACCENT

Cinderella of East Ham

This is a Cinderella story — the tale of a girl from East Ham. Her name is Barbara Archer, aged 20.

LIKE Cinderella, Barbara spent most of her life in the kitchen. No bedroom to herself, no bathroom, no telephone; life at home is one long struggle to make ends meet. Our Cinderella 1955 is born a Cockney. She is also fair of face, full of grace and highly talented. Maybe a fairy godmother presided over Barbara's birth. For whenever she steps foot outside home, Barbara's talents seem to carry her towards a destiny of fame.

It began with Miss Lothian. Miss Lothian was Barbara's schoolmistress. She teaches in an overcrowded council school in East Ham. It is tough work; she is tired at the end of the day. But never so tired that she could not give up her evenings to Barbara. She coached her pupil in reading and elocution.

This labour of love led to Barbara performing in a school play. It was a great occasion. The East Ham councillors attended in full force. But Barbara was curiously cast. Concealing her beauty she played the tramp of 90 in The Insect Play.

Determined

So impressed were the councillors by the tramp's eloquence, they resolved to give her a proper training in dramatic art. When the tramp's identity was revealed they were even more determined. Barbara was sent to the training school of the Royal Academy.

Sir Kenneth Barnes and his son soon corroborated the opinion of East Ham. Barbara was awarded a scholarship to the Royal Academy.

At the end of her training, Barbara could neither afford the clothes nor the luxury of waiting for work. She found employment in a stationer's shop and arranged her theatrical interviews as best she could mostly on early closing day.

Even if no suitable parts were available, people who met Barbara soon squeezing her into their productions. These included Sir Carol Reed, Anthony Quinn and Michael Powell.

Then came Barbara's big chance. She was invited to Pinewood studios for a film test. Barbara chose for her test a speech from Noel Coward's This Happy Breed.

Now I enter the scene, I met her at the studios, and the day before her test Barbara was so overcome with nerves she asked me to hear her piece.

Effective

Barbara is a big actress. At first she over-projected. I told her to keep it down, that in front of the camera an intimate delivery is far more effective.

She began again, softly in a low key and with radiant sincerity.

This is the speech she chose. Queenie: I tell you something awful. I hate living that's exactly like hundreds of other houses. I hate coming home from work in the tube. I hate waking up and helping Mum darn the socks and listening to Aunt Sylvia going on about how ill she is all the time, and what's more I know why I hate it, too, it's because I've all so commercial. There I expect you'll think I'm getting above myself, but I wouldn't blame you, really.

I am, but I don't think that's what I don't think I'd be a good wife for you, however much I loved you and I really do.

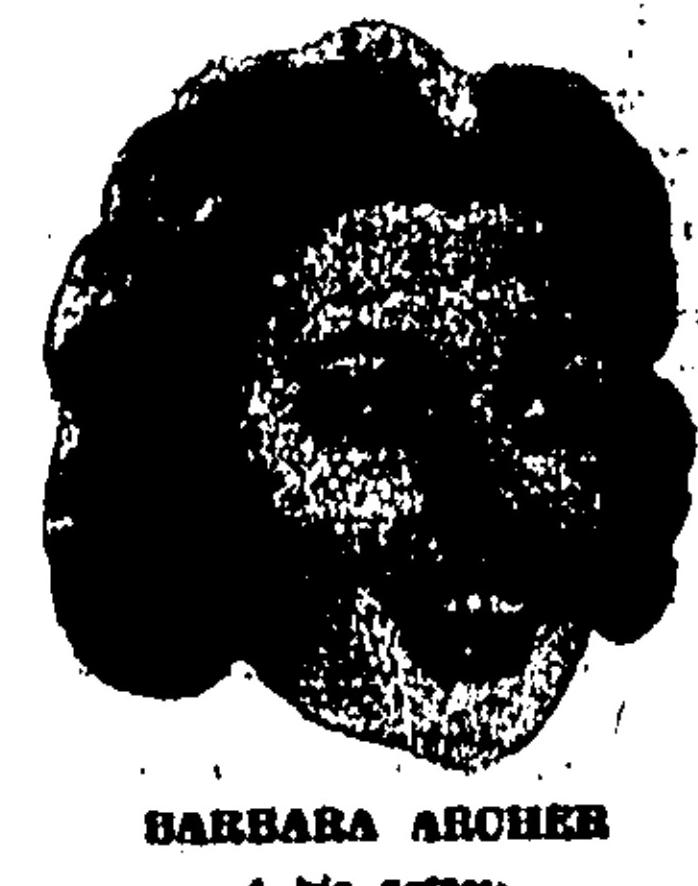

Oh, silly.

Real-tears

The studio director suggested Queenie should burst into tears. Barbara cried — suddenly.

Every godmother will need to have their handkerchiefs ready.

WORLD COPYRIGHT RESERVED

BARBARA ARCHER
A bit actress

Everyone at Pinewood was certain Barbara would be signed up. They told her she was wonderful. The director said she was a born actress. An electrician was seen to dab his eyes. Days of cruel suspense followed until one day Barbara learned another had been taken in her place.

A natural

Maybe that fairy godmother was watching. For Barbara was then taken to Sir Michael Balcon's studio.

"That girl's a natural," said casting director Miss Harper Nelson.

"It does you good just to meet her," said producer Jack Arnold. "She's a natural, she's a natural, she's a natural." Even if no suitable parts were available, people who met Barbara soon squeezing her into their productions. These included Sir Carol Reed, Anthony Quinn and Michael Powell.

It does you good just to meet her," said producer Jack Arnold. "She's a natural, she's a natural, she's a natural." Even if no suitable parts were available, people who met Barbara soon squeezing her into their productions. These included Sir Carol Reed, Anthony Quinn and Michael Powell.

So Barbara impresses everybody she meets. Yet she failed in her test at Pinewood. Girls with little or no acting experience are taken in preference. Why?

The answer is simple. Barbara speaks with a Cockney accent. It is not the stock BBC Cockney that so grates on our ears. "It's ever so nice, really it is!" Barbara's Cockney makes other people's English sound affected. She expresses herself in grammatical, colourful, extrovert, vigorous language.

"To talk this way," she says, sounding rather like Sylvia Syms, "would be as unnatural for me as for Gregory Peck. We can both do it if called upon to do it, but there's no reason to act in real life, is there?"

A star

Barbara can astound a French-American or even Australian audience, but she succeeds to her own satisfaction.

Queenie: I tell you something awful. I hate living that's exactly like hundreds of other houses. I hate coming home from work in the tube. I hate waking up and helping Mum darn the socks and listening to Aunt Sylvia going on about how ill she is all the time, and what's more I know why I hate it, too, it's because I've all so commercial.

There I expect you'll think I'm getting above myself, but I wouldn't blame you, really.

I am, but I don't think that's what I don't think I'd be a good wife for you, however much I loved you and I really do.

Oh, silly.

She began again, softly in a low key and with radiant sincerity.

This is the speech she chose. Queenie: I tell you something awful. I hate living that's exactly like hundreds of other houses. I hate coming home from work in the tube. I hate waking up and helping Mum darn the socks and listening to Aunt Sylvia going on about how ill she is all the time, and what's more I know why I hate it, too, it's because I've all so commercial.

There I expect you'll think I'm getting above myself, but I wouldn't blame you, really.

I am, but I don't think that's what I don't think I'd be a good wife for you, however much I loved you and I really do.

Oh, silly.

She began again, softly in a low key and with radiant sincerity.

This is the speech she chose. Queenie: I tell you something awful. I hate living that's exactly like hundreds of other houses. I hate coming home from work in the tube. I hate waking up and helping Mum darn the socks and listening to Aunt Sylvia going on about how ill she is all the time, and what's more I know why I hate it, too, it's because I've all so commercial.

There I expect you'll think I'm getting above myself, but I wouldn't blame you, really.

I am, but I don't think that's what I don't think I'd be a good wife for you, however much I loved you and I really do.

Oh, silly.

She began again, softly in a low key and with radiant sincerity.

This is the speech she chose. Queenie: I tell you something awful. I hate living that's exactly like hundreds of other houses. I hate coming home from work in the tube. I hate waking up and helping Mum darn the socks and listening to Aunt Sylvia going on about how ill she is all the time, and what's more I know why I hate it, too, it's because I've all so commercial.

There I expect you'll think I'm getting above myself, but I wouldn't blame you, really.

I am, but I don't think that's what I don't think I'd be a good wife for you, however much I loved you and I really do.

Oh, silly.

She began again, softly in a low key and with radiant sincerity.

This is the speech she chose. Queenie: I tell you something awful. I hate living that's exactly like hundreds of other houses. I hate coming home from work in the tube. I hate waking up and helping Mum darn the socks and listening to Aunt Sylvia going on about how ill she is all the time, and what's more I know why I hate it, too, it's because I've all so commercial.

There I expect you'll think I'm getting above myself, but I wouldn't blame you, really.

I am, but I don't think that's what I don't think I'd be a good wife for you, however much I loved you and I really do.

Oh, silly.

She began again, softly in a low key and with radiant sincerity.

This is the speech she chose. Queenie: I tell you something awful. I hate living that's exactly like hundreds of other houses. I hate coming home from work in the tube. I hate waking up and helping Mum darn the socks and listening to Aunt Sylvia going on about how ill she is all the time, and what's more I know why I hate it, too, it's because I've all so commercial.

There I expect you'll think I'm getting above myself, but I wouldn't blame you, really.

I am, but I don't think that's what I don't think I'd be a good wife for you, however much I loved you and I really do.

Oh, silly.

She began again, softly in a low key and with radiant sincerity.

This is the speech she chose. Queenie: I tell you something awful. I hate living that's exactly like hundreds of other houses. I hate coming home from work in the tube. I hate waking up and helping Mum darn the socks and listening to Aunt Sylvia going on about how ill she is all the time, and what's more I know why I hate it, too, it's because I've all so commercial.

There I expect you'll think I'm getting above myself, but I wouldn't blame you, really.

I am, but I don't think that's what I don't think I'd be a good wife for you, however much I loved you and I really do.

Oh, silly.

She began again, softly in a low key and with radiant sincerity.

This is the speech she chose. Queenie: I tell you something awful. I hate living that's exactly like hundreds of other houses. I hate coming home from work in the tube. I hate waking up and helping Mum darn the socks and listening to Aunt Sylvia going on about how ill she is all the time, and what's more I know why I hate it, too, it's because I've all so commercial.